Judge Sparks Overrules Demurrer of City to Partial Answer of Service Commission.

OUTGROWTH OF GAS CASES

Court Declares Power to Fix Rates is Vested in State by Legislative Authority.

Judge Sparks this morning overruled the demurrer of the City of Rushville to a partial answer of the Public Service Commission in the suit brought by the city against the commission asking for an injunction, thus virtually declaring the law constitutional.

The demurrer raised the question of the validity of the law and the argument at the time attracted wide attention, as by sustaining the demurrer the court would have declared the law unconstitutional. In giving his decision, Judge Sparks stated that the question of rates did not enter into the question, as no mention was made as to whether the rate here was excessive.

By overruling the demurrer Judge Sparks held that the power to fix rates was invested in the state by legislative authority and that cities never did have the power under the legislature to regulate rates. The state's power to regulate rates, according to the ruling of the court, is vested in the Public Service Commission by the legislature and by virtue of this the law is held to be constitutional. The city argued that the state had no power over the city in fixing rates, but Judge Sparks ruled that the city was a part of the state and that the state did have power over the city.

In the argument before the court on the demurrer Attorney General Stotsenburg and Bert New legal advisor to the governor, appeared for the commission and the gas companies were represented by Thomas M. Green. John H. Kiplinger represented the city. A large number of citations were given the court. With the overruling of the demurrer the case will now be tried on the original question regarding the injunction to prevent the commission from placing in effect the rate to be charged for gas in the city of Rushville.

The Walter A. Wood Mowing and Reaping Machine Company was given a judgment against John E. Patton on notes in the sum of $260.38. The original demand was $1,200, but part of these notes had been paid.

FORMER GOVERNOR PICKED

David R. Francis to be Nominated For Russian Post.

(By United Press.)

Washington, March 4.—The nomination of David R. Francis, former governor of Missouri, to be United States ambassador to Russia, will be sent to the senate by President Wilson Monday.

Congratulations To—

J. M. Amos, a well known farmer living south of the city. Mr. Amos is sixty-two today. Mr. Amos is a successful farmer and business man. He is a director of the Rushville National bank. . . . This is also the birthday of Jacob Hiner, a well known farmer living southeast of here. He is sixty-one today.

ALLOWED TIME TO FILL THE LIST

Lester Smith, Progressive County Chairman, Given Extra Day And Appoints Judges.

CHANGES FEW APPOINTMENTS

If Election Officials do Not Show up, Balance of Board Will Fill the Vacancy.

The board of election commissioners avoided the difficulty of selecting some nineteen or twenty Progressive judges for the primary Tuesday by giving Lester Smith, the county chairman, additional time in which to file a complete list. This was done about four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The election board believed this was the easiest way out of the difficulty. According to the law, the names of the officers had to be filed by midnight Thursday. When the list was filed nineteen places had not been filled. It was up to the board to fill the vacancies, but as the members did not know who were Progressives and who were not, they decided to let Smith name his officials and then the appointments would be made.

In the revised list as placed on file several names were changed in order that none of the judges would be related to any candidates. This is in accordance with the law. In case the election officials do not show up at the polls on election day the vacancy is filled by selecting someone to serve by the balance of the board.

The complete list of Progressive judges is as follows:

Rushville—No. 1, J. C. Craig; No. 2, Ned Abercrombie; No. 3, Charles G. Smyth; No. 4, William Wylie; No. 5, Joseph Mary; No. 6, Elsbury Pea; No. 7, Joe Endicott; No. 8, David Sloan; No. 9, David Glore; No. 10, W. F. Taylor.

Noble—No. 1, K. Kelso; No. 2, E. E. Morris.

Ripley—No. 1, Cassius Gray; No. 2, Oliver S. Earnest; No. 3, Murray Moore.

Orange—No. 1, W. E. Roth; No. 2, Harry Spaulding.

Jackson—No. 1, James Gartin.

Anderson—No. 1, Cash King; No. 2, Clarence Richey.

Posey—No. 1, S. D. Sampson; No. 2, Art Winslow.

Walker—No. 1, Osear Miller; No. 2, Byron Westerfield.

Richland—No. 1, Joe Fey.

Washington—No. 1, Fred A. Bills; No. 2, Curtha Wagoner.

Center—No. 1, Glen H. Kirkham; No. 2, Ed Retherford.

Union—No. 1, Eddie Myers; No. 2, John Mapes.

FAILS TO GET INDICTMENT

Carlton Chaney Has Witnesses Before Shelby Grand Jury.

The Shelby county grand jury adjourned yesterday without returning any indictment against Dr. J. T. Paxton of this city. It became known that Carlton Chaney of near Glenwood has seven or eight witnesses before the grand jury in an effort to indict Dr. Paxton on charges growing out of one of the damage suits involving Dr. Paxton and Chaney. Judge Blair quashed one indictment against Dr. Paxton. The grand jury adjourned yesterday returning two indictments, but neither of them was against the local physician.

JUDGE DEFENDS BROTHER FINLY

George Gray of Connersville Makes Vitriolic Attack on Congressman's Enemies.

REPLIES TO STATEMENTS

Says Disappointed Office Seekers Stabbed Finly in Back While he Was at Post of Duty.

Defending his "Brother Finly's" record in congress and at the same time hitting back at some of what he termed "disappointed postoffice applicants" for stabbing Congressman Gray in the back while he is in Washington attending to his duties, Judge Gray of Connersville Friday night made the first primary campaign speech in behalf of Representative Gray here.

Judge Gray excused the size of the crowd—twenty-eight voters and four boys—because the night was bad and the meeting had not been extensively advertised. The small attendance, however, did not lessen Judge Gray's vitriolic attack on disappointed office seekers and the "partisan Republican newspapers of Wayne county."

Judge Gray did not mince words with "Brother Finly's" opponent, John M. Lontz of Richmond. He held up to ridicule the two explanations for Lontz's candidacy—one by his friends and another by himself.

As one explanation for Lontz's candidacy, Judge Gray called attention to the letter of Lontz to Jack W. Harper, disappointed applicant for the Cambridge City postoffice. In that communication which Gray read, Lontz said he felt it was a public duty and that he owed it to the community to become a candidate and serve the people. On the other hand, the judge declared, Lontz said in his first formal speech at a banquet in his honor at Richmond recently that he had previously written a letter to Congressman Adair, urging him to become a candidate for governor, and that his (Lontz's) friends had taken the letter, placed the words "member of congress" in place of "governor" and changed Adair's name to Lontz, so that he (Lontz) was placed in the position of resisting his own appeal, which he could not do.

While Finly has remained at his post attending to his duties," said Judge Gray, "there have been some gentlemen trying to shoot him in the back. The Republican press of the district have been very hostile. There is no Democratic newspaper in Wayne county and the two partisan Republican newspapers there have attacked Finly viciously, without justification. They attacked him because there had been adopted some fifty-mile motor mail routes. This caused some displeasure among the patrons and the news papers blamed Finly.

"Congressman Finly Gray, while he was resting at home during recess, hurried to Washington to oppose the change in the rural mail service before the routes were mapped out. I have a speech of Finly's showing the statement of the fourth assistant postmaster general to the effect that Finly Gray opposed the motorized rural routes.

"While that was going on, some fellows who did not get postoffices joined forces with the hostile press. There were many applicants for postoffices. Doubtless all of them could have served as well as the ones appointed. But the ambition of all of them could not be gratified.

"At the banquet at Richmond, Lontz talked antagonistic in a general way to Finly. In his speech he picked up a piece of paper that he

INSPECTORS GET SUPPLIES TODAY

All Legal Steps Necessary For Distribution in General Election Are Required.

CONFUSION OVER VOTING

Second Choice Vote Cast When More Than One Candidate—Rotation of Candidates.

Primary election inspectors called at the office of A. M. Taylor, clerk of the circuit court, today and received their supplies for the election which will be held next Tuesday. The supplies were all sealed, the ballots, poll books, tally sheets and other necessary supplies being distributed by precincts according to the number needed.

The commission had the supplies for each precinct in a separate package and marked for the inspector. This made the distribution of the supplies a small task. All the inspectors had to do was to ask for his supplies and give a receipt for them. There are thirty-one precincts in the county.

In this primary, all the legal steps that are required in distributing supplies for a general election have to be taken. The law safe-guarding general election supplies applies to the supplies for the primary. It is incumbent, therefore, upon inspectors and all other members of the primary boards to see to it that none of the supplies is tampered with in any way after coming into the board's hands.

That the modified preferential system of voting which has been adopted for the Indiana primary election is confusing to many voters, is indicating by the large number of inquiries made concerning the manner of marking the ballots. As this method is a departure to some extent from the form of voting that has been used for many years it is natural that some confusion should follow but the system when thoroughly understood is not as complicated as many are prone to believe.

Although the names of the candidates when four or more are making the race for the same office do not appear in the same rotation on all the ballots, no difficulty should be experienced by any voter in supporting his favorite candidates as each will have the same number on all the ballots. On some the numbers may be conservative but on other lower numbers may appear below higher ones and again they may be mixed, according to the ballot which is handed the voter.

There will only be one ticket for each party. The Republican ticket will be red, the Democratic ticket white and the Progressive ticket yellow. When a voter enters the polls he will ask the judges for a ticket of his political faith. Only one will be given. This precaution is taken for in the past it is known that members of one party have voted in the primaries of another in order to secure the nomination of some candidate who might be their choice because of his qualifications or because he believes such candidate to be the weakest in the field. It is known that while occasionally some unscrupulous voter will go into the polls of another party to vote for the latter reason, but under the new primary law this is made impossible for when the ballot is handed to a voter his name and his political affiliation are recorded and made a matter of record. The book containing this information is placed on file in the office of the county clerk and is open to public inspection.

TEST IN THE HOUSE ON WARNING RESOLUTION NOT UNTIL TUESDAY

WRANGLE IN THE SENATE

Several Members Say Three Americans Sailed on Liner Today at Own Risk.

(By United Press.)

Washington, March 4.—If three Americans—Charles Bellows and wife of Brooklyn, and W. W. Nichols of Chicago—who sailed on the armed liner Canopic from New York today should come to their death as a result of a torpedo attack, they are victims of their own bravado, and the United States should not go to war over them, was the sentiment expressed on the floor by five senators today.

Jones, McCumber, Hitchcock and Clapp joined in a continuation of yesterday's assault on the administration's policy which they said would force the nation into war if only one reckless American was killed.

"The American people do not understand fine-spun international law but they can see the awful injustice of asking us to send 100,000,000 people to war to pay for the criminal bravado and recklessness of these persons," said Jones.

The House of Representatives will not vote until Tuesday on the question of whether congress should interfere with the president in the conduct of international problems.

After a day of perplexity over what the senate's action yesterday really amounted to, a threatened division over the procedure and a fight within their own ranks on when to force the vote the administration supporters finally announced the postponement.

The announcement was received with unconcealed delight by members of the Indiana delegation for the vote will come on the day they go before the people for renomination. They had feared that the president's request for a showdown would force them into an embarrassing position at home before the Indiana primaries and their attitude was one factor in obtaining the postponement.

The wide difference of opinion in the rules committee—the body that must pave the way for a vote on the McLemore resolution—was mainly responsible for delay but the absence of many members was a factor.

Division among the president's supporters in the House broke out today. After several of his friends had mapped out a program to postpone until Monday a vote in the house on the McLemore resolution, because of the absence of members, a number of others, including Representatives Sherley, Allen and Glass, began a fight to force a vote today, claiming that the muddle created by the senate vote should be immediately cleared up.

Sherley and his coterie of "immediate action" advocates were loud in their condemnation of any postponement and immediately after that program was announced started canvassing the rules committee membership to ascertain whether they could muster enough adherents there to have a rule reported this afternoon for immediate consideration of the McLemore measure.

Acting Chairman Pou of the rules committee admitted that the resolution might yet be brought before the house in view of the strength of the "immediate action" advocates.

Speaker Clark said he thought the matter would go over until Monday, but would not be sure until after he conferred with the leaders. Clark's private office was the scene of many conferences with leaders of both factions, including Pou, Floor Leader Kitchen and Chairman Flood of the foreign affairs committee participating.

Strong sentiment among the house membership developed in favor of immediate action. The Republicans appeared willing to take the vote today. Some administration leaders declared postponement was an indirect slap at the president who in his letter to Pou requested "prompt action."

P. J. LYNCH of New Castle

Candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress from the Sixth district is a self-made man and according to his old friends and neighbors he has done a good job. Mr. Lynch is 42 years old, having been born in Chester County, Pennsylvania, on April 19, 1874. He was the youngest of ten children—five boys and five girls. His father died when he was a year and a half old, leaving little. The stout-hearted mother took up the hard struggle, and when young Lynch had reached the age of fifteen he had become the mother's strong prop in her struggle with the world. Young Lynch's first job paid him the munificent sum of $150 per year. At the end of his first year he turned over to his mother $147.50 of his earnings. He began life as a day laborer and was not unfamiliar with the wheelbarrow and the shovel. He learned to work with his hands and to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow.

Young Lynch early displayed the traits that had been his heritage from his father and mother. With fine courage he began the battle of life, educating himself as he could create the opportunities. At an early age he secured a place with the big floral house of Dingee & Conard at West Grove, Pennsylvania, and it was but a few years until he had mastered the business and was one of the owners and managers of this mammoth business.

He early manifested an interest in political affairs, identifying himself with the Republican party. In 1904 he was elected a delegate to the Republican national convention from Pennsylvania, and it was due to the firm stand that he took in a meeting of the Pennsylvania delegation on the night before the Republican National Convention assembled in 1904 that the vote of Pennsylvania was cast solidly for Theodore Roosevelt for the presidential nomination. The Quay machine was against Roosevelt and if the organization had been able to master a solid delegation from that state it is probable that some other man than Roosevelt would have been the Republican presidential nominee that year. Lynch, in the face of personal dangers, declined to wear a Quay collar.

Some years ago Mr. Lynch purchased a large floral business in "The City of Roses" and since that time New Castle has been his home. He is married and has two sons. His wife formerly was Miss Caroline Forkner.

In the campaign of 1914 Mr. Lynch received by acclamation the Republican nomination for Congress in the Sixth District, and although, owing to the division in the Party the situation looked like a forlorn hope he went into the campaign with the same vigor and enthusiasm that has characterized all of his undertakings in life. He carried on one of the most active speaking campaigns that was ever known in the District and while he presented the Republican cause with great clearness and force he accorded to other men the right to differ from him in their honest political opinions and was never guilty of any utterance that might insult the most ardent Progressive or adherent of other Parties.

As a result of this campaign he received more votes than Hugh Th Miller, the head of the ticket, as candidate for the United States Senator and reduced Finly Gray's plurality 5,234 votes.

He is well versed in the principles of his party and is all the more in earnest in their advocacy on account of the fact that his business interests are such that he has felt the sting of Democratic inefficiency as much as any man in the District.

His personal character is above reproach and his personality as a man, and power as a speaker is such that he will do more to bring about a rousing Republican victory in the Sixth District, the coming Fall than any man who could be put on the ticket.

For over fifty years the Old Burnt District was represented by a Republican in Congress. Unfortunately a few years ago this honorable record was broken and it fell into the hands of the Democracy.

The question this campaign is shall it be put back where it rightfully belongs? Shall the Republicans of the District again come into their own?

The one man in the District to assure this result is Patrick J. Lynch. In 1914, with a divided party he came nearer doing it than any man expected. His results were surprising. This year, with the Party substantially a unity, his nomination can mean but one thing and that is that in the Fall of 1916 he will start the old District on another fifty years of honorable and efficient Republican representation.

ZERO TEMPERATURE DURING THE NIGHT

Any Doubts as to Whether March Came in Like a Lion or a Lamb Are Removed Now.

WILL BE WARMER TOMORROW

Any doubts as to whether March came in like a lion or a lamb are removed now. The biggest element in the removal of such doubts was the zero temperature that greeted folks when they arose this morning. The thermometer of Elwood Kirkwood, county weather observer, at Mauzy, recorded a temperature during the night of one degree above zero, which is the coldest weather for March in years. The temperature night before last, according to the county weather observer, was four degrees above zero.

The cold weather is not to last long the weather prediction says today. Higher temperatures, with overcast skies, are promised for Sunday. A strong gale last night added to the discomfort of the few people who were abroad.

Vote for "33" Ezekiel M. Jones (better known as "Zeke") a Republican Candidate for Sheriff, from Ripley Township, Rush County, at Primary March 7, 1916.

I have found it absolutely impossible to see all of the voters before the Primary to solicit their support for my candidacy for Republican nomination for Sheriff of Rush County, but I desire to say that I have always been a loyal, staunch and true blue Republican. I live in Ripley Township now, and cast my first vote in Rush County for James G. Blaine. I nor any of my immediate family have never held nor asked for any public office nor have I been the nominee for any except that I was a candidate in 1912 for Sheriff of Rush County and withdrew on the fourth ballot in the county delegate convention, and went out and worked my best for the ticket, as I always have done.

FOR REFERENCE to my Republicanism or qualifications for this office I refer you to any business man or bank in Rush county.

I CAN BE ELECTED IF NOMINATED.
MY NUMBER ON BALLOT WILL BE 33
I thank you in advance for your support, yours very truly,

The other picture is a comedy entitled "Romantic Reggie." Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew are featured. The program will end with the comedy "Animated Nooz Pictorial." It is a burlesque on current events. Next Monday matinee and night the feature production "Clarissa" will be shown. Miss Hazel Dawn, whose unusual screen successes in "Opé of our Girls" and "Niobe," attracted so much attention, is featured. The photoplay is founded on the story of Ronald MacDonald's. Through the influence of a wealthy woman, Stephen Gambier is greatly helped in his political career. Their friendship is misunderstood by the outside world, however, and when the tragedy of the woman's death occurs, circumstances seem to point to a lover's quarrel and Gambier is arrested. Clarissa comes to the rescue. The story is said to be especially strong and there are many dramatic situations.

The Mystic will show a three act feature "A Desert Honeymoon" for the first picture tonight. It is said to be a thrilling drama. The other picture of tonight's program is a two act feature "Avenging Bill." Monday night the feature picture "The Red Virgin" will be shown in which Helen Eddy is featured.

United States Navy Would be Helpless Former Secretary of Navy Meyer Declares.

DANIELS IS INCOMPETENT

Public Has Not Yet Realized Deplorable Condition of Our Navy, he Asserts.

(By United Press.)

New York, March 4.—"If war should be declared tomorrow morning our navy under Josephus Daniels would be absolutely impotent to check the invasion of our coast," declared Former Secretary of the Navy George Von L. Meyer, here today.

"Congress is talking war," said Meyer. "Thanks to the incompetence of Mr. Daniels war tomorrow with any of the four European nations would find the way open to the enemy."

"The public has not yet realized the deplorable condition of our navy. Demoralization already has attacked the personnel because military efficiency has not been Daniels' goal."

Meyer said the navy has no tested war plans or tested mobilization plans, no general staff, has insufficient ammunition, enlisted men and officers and no enlisted reserve.

"Instead of upbuilding the efficiency of the navy," he said, "Daniels' hobby has been rather to teach naval fighters reading, 'ritin' and rithmetic."

Meyer called for the immediate authorization of a general staff and a national council of defense by congress, an increased naval enlistment of 50,000 men and the passing of an immediate act to build four battle cruisers at a speed of not less than 30 knots.

A CHANGE OF TACTICS.

How It Worked in the Case of a Discouraged Salesman.

The following method of gaining assurance is told in the American Magazine. It is the experience of a salesman who could not sell his goods because he allowed himself to be discouraged at initial attempts. It has wide application everywhere:

"I am a commercial traveler who conquered the habit of despondency. Every one who sells goods knows how fierce is the competition. When I took this job six years ago it seemed absolutely overwhelming. I didn't sell anything to speak of and made up my mind that I couldn't, though I kept on making the round of the groceries. There seemed to be a thousand salesmen just ahead of me. I grew very bitter at the thousand and everybody else. Whenever I entered a store it was with the firm conviction that I should not get an order. I looked dully at the merchant and said gloomily:

"Anything in my line?" at the same time reaching for the doorknob. They didn't try to detain me.

"One day in conversation with an old drummer, a shrewd veteran of the road, I opened my heart with a savage complaint about the thousand salesmen, my advance guard. He puffed his cigar a moment, his eyes twinkled and he slapped me on the shoulder.

"I know," he said. "I had 'em ahead of me once. They raised Cain with me until I chased 'em to the rear. Take my advice, boy, and get up to the head of the procession and let the other fellows do the worrying."

"I thought it over, and it dawned on me that it was a question of viewpoint. I had formed a habit of picturing myself at the tail of the line, though in reality we were going in a circle and my position was as good as any. Then I changed my tactics and formed a new habit—the habit of thinking of myself as the leader, the very first man in the territory. Just as an experiment I went out the next day believing that I should get orders. I pulled my order book and pencil the moment I entered a store and began to name certain goods.

"Sugar!" I cried, looking the grocer expectantly in the eye, as much as to say that I could see the empty barrel behind his counter. And the barrel was empty! It worked so well in the first store that I tried more vigorously in the next, and the merchant came down freely. It was almost uncanny the way I guessed the items he needed. I went out on the sidewalk and laughed aloud. And I actually sold more goods that day than I had sold before in three weeks.

"Well, the firm raised my salary instead of firing me, as they had planned to do, and I still insist that I am the first man over the route. I tell you, right habits of thought are worth money—sometimes a fortune."

Spirit of the Home.

I never realized before how rare indeed is the real home—the temple reared to house a family life, with its altar dedicated to parenthood. I saw that it is not enough to have furniture "good," to have colors "safe," not enough to show a pretty, well appointed house to the world. A real home must be a setting for a living, loving, sorrowing and conquering man and woman. It is not enough to study textures, plans and building materials. It is just the old story of the letter and the spirit. The creative spirit can make any home beautiful, but the most letter perfect house is a dead shell unless it houses loving, growing life.—Emily Newell Blair in Countryside Magazine.

The Footmen's Gallery.

There was in one part of the theater where in bygone days smoking was permitted the footmen's gallery, where servants in attendance on masters visiting the theater were admitted free. But the occupants of the footmen's gallery were so noisy and they so frequently hissed out of existence plays that their masters approved of that the privilege was withdrawn, and the gallery became the "shilling gallery," which has kept up to a great extent the traditional privilege of outspoken criticism originally exercised by footmen.—London Chronicle.

A Real Enthusiast.

The Vincennes Morning Commercial, of which Thomas H. Adams is the proprietor, devotes three columns to replying to the yellow hound of Indiana journalism, the Evansville Journal News, which, wolf-like, hides itself under the lamb-like guise of "an independent newspaper." Several copies of the Journal-News containing the false, libelous and malignant attacks on James E. Watson have been received here. The Morning Commercial trims the sails of the Evansville montebank in fine style.

The Commercial accuses the greedy gang of politicians in Marion county of being responsible for the attack on Watson for the reason they are jealous of his popularity and his ability. The Commercial makes the assertion that "Watson will carry the entire lower counties by a vote of at least two to one, the Journal-News of Evansville notwithstanding."

The Vincennes newspaper calls attention to the fact that Watson is one kind of a villain in Fort Wayne and another in Evansville, according to his malicious enemies. It recalls that anonymous circulars were spread out from Fort Wayne denouncing Watson as a tool and candidate of the Taggart-Fairbanks Democratic machine and that the Journal-News is very sure that Watson is an infamous character because the manufacturers boosted him in 1908 for governor.

"Watson represents the best interests of the state and has always done so," continues the Commercial. "He is the friend of the manufacturer, because he is the chief tariff apostle of this country, and that is just what the business man and laboring man wants, a fair, square representative who will work to protect the interest of these classes."

"Evansville is full of manufacturing establishments and every one of them is depending right now on the election of an able representative from Indiana to the senate for their very business life depends upon the repeal of the Underwood law. Jim Watson is just the man to do it, and they are going to vote for him, and elect him, and he ought to carry Vanderburg county by a vote of five to one. Every manufacturer in Indiana ought to call his laboring men together, tell them the truth and expose the scandal-mongering, yellow-spined journalism."

"It seems that the Marion county political machine could have made its campaign for Harry New at least fair and respectable, but the average Marion county politician goes after what he is greedy for regardless of the consequences, so they commenced at one end of the state, up at Ft. Wayne, declaring that Jim Watson, Harry New's opponent, was in league with the liquor interests at Ft. Wayne. Then at the other end of the state, at Evansville they accused Watson with being the direct tool of the plutocratic interests, and an enemy of labor. The voter will have to take his choice, believe these lies, or else repudiate them entirely for what they are, baseless, worthless fabrications for campaign purposes."

"The common cheap fake that has been spread about the state ever since James E. Watson ran for governor in 1908 is that Watson is opposed to labor, and unfriendly to it. The charge is so weak and absurd that none will be influenced by it."

"In 1908 Watson lost Indiana by the former Mayor of Greenfield, who was our candidate in 1914, who made the race in the face of certain defeat and carried the district ahead of the STATE TICKET."

He is a man of sterling worth and ability and has the backbone and grit to make good in the State Senate. The Republicans of Rush County should vote for him solidly. Decatur has a candidate, but at the present time they have representation in the senate and will have for over two years. Rush County has a candidate for United States Senator. ORA MYERS is the only candidate which Hancock County has for State office. You should vote for him from the logical, geographical and political standpoint.

Vote for the man that was with you in 1914

15,000 and Taft won by 15,000. It was not the labor vote that did it. Watson was traded off by Frank Hanly on the liquor question in 1908, and labor had nothing to do with it. The Republican platform on county option defeated the governor and labor did not. * * *

"They (the Marion county politicians) insulted Watson in 1912 and would not let him make speeches in the state. In 1914 Goodrich and New and the state committee refused to assign Watson to any meetings until absolutely forced to do so. Why? Because they feared that the Republican state machine, upon which they had fattened so many years, would slip from their grasp. In spite of it, they admit that Watson was the greatest and best campaigner in the country and urged him to go to other states and spread the Republican gospel, while they (Goodrich and New) were scuttling the Republican ship at home. They scuttled it in 1912 in Marion county, as is well known."

"Watson through all that trouble stood grim and alone. In 1912 he stood as a central figure as floor leader in the national convention, that held the party together, and in a manner that was matchless in its courtesy to the Roosevelt wing, conducted the convention so fairly and so honestly that Gov. Hadley of Missouri on the other side, thanked him warmly and with great enthusiasm."

"Watson was the first speaker out that summer, and made his first ringing speech in Noblesville in August. While Harry New, Jim Goodrich and other leaders all ran to the woods, and did not appear from under cover until October. Oh, we remember those days of political hell well enough. * * *

"We hope the Evansville, Vincennes and Indianapolis business men will defend themselves by seeing that Watson gets real active support of the right kind so that the Republican party can show that it is the party of the full pocketbook and the full dinner pail, opposed to the empty pocketbook and the empty dinnerpail."

"In conclusion, the hired labor agitators are misrepresenting the case, the Mine Workers Journal absolutely misrepresents Watson in every detail of its fake article on his work. Watson never opposed any bill for the good of the workingmen, was always their friend, and supporter, and when employed by the manufacturers in the past years has only been employed to represent them on questions of the tariff laws that affected the manufacturing business. We challenge and defy contradiction in every particular. This war on Watson is meant to defeat and overpower labor and not to support or help it."

FIVE AMERICANS KILLED IN FRANCE

Kelly of the Foreign Legion Sought Honors on Battlefield.

LAST SEEN IN FOE'S TRENCH

Dispatch From French War Office Says He Is Honorably Missing—Companions Also Praised For Their Bravery on Many Occasions Since They Enlisted With the Allies.

Kelly of the Foreign legion is dead. "Russell Kelly, 45 Broadway, New York, U. S. A.," is the way his name went into the rolls of his regiment in France, but "Kelly of the Foreign legion" is the way it will be written in the roll of heroes when the list is handed down to posterity in the story of the European war.

Kelly grinned and said he would cheat the Germans when he was told that the order had gone out to execute every member of the Foreign legion captured in battle. And he did cheat them. He escaped the ignominious death threatened at the hands of a firing squad to find a more glorious one on the field of battle.

Where Kelly of the Foreign legion met death and how only those who were with him on his final charge can tell. But his father, James E. Kelly, possesses a treasured message from the French war office that he points to as sufficient evidence that his boy died as an American should.

"Your son is honorably missing. Was seen in German trench with bullet in shoulder," the message reads.

The meager dispatch contains additional facts that will give little satisfaction to the Americans whose eyes have scanned the cables for news of other Americans in the legion. It tells of the death of Kelly's four American associates, Hermon Edwin Hall of Chicago, John Earle Pike of Wooster, O., and Kenneth Weeks and Henry Farnsworth of Boston.

Reported Dead Once Before.

The names first appeared among the casualties at Givenchy, but later it was reported that Kelly and possibly the other four had recovered and again had taken their places in the trenches. The later report, however, may mean that this was an error or that they fell together in a later encounter.

Kelly, who had been in the lines of the allies "somewhere in France" for several months, was reported missing last summer. James Kelly, on learning of the disappearance of his adventurous son, started the machinery of the state department at Washington on a search for him in German prisons. Simultaneous with the original report came the statement that Germany had ordered all members of the Foreign legion shot wherever they might be captured. The technical offense of the members of the legion was that they were not citizens of the country for which they were fighting.

"But Russell will beat that all right," confidently asserted the father. "When I first learned of the difficulties that the legionnaires were likely to get into I wrote him explicit directions not to claim American citizenship if taken prisoner. All I told him to do was to claim the right of communicating with Ambassador Gerard. His answer to my letter was characteristic. It was, 'Will follow your instructions in case of capture.'"

However, news reached Mr. Russell that there was no record of the imprisonment of his son in a German camp. The news was crushing. It had seemed possible that he might have concealed his identity for weeks, but seven months—the father's almost unlimited fund of hope was lost.

Kelly wrote to his father that he was seeing hotter work than Ty Cobb ever had seen in hitting the grit. The twenty-two-year-old boy cheerfully announced that he was out for glory. And now Kelly of the Foreign legion has reached the other end of the path that leads to glory.

Kenneth Weeks of Cambridge, Mass., whose death in France is reported, was twenty-six years old and had written five volumes of short stories, besides several plays. He went to Paris five years ago to study at the Beaux Arts.

Devoted to France, he enlisted at the outbreak of the war and spent the first winter in the trenches. He was chosen as bomb thrower for his squad and took in the offensive of May 4. He was mentioned in despatches for bravery. He was regarded as a writer of much promise.

Henry W. Farnsworth, a Harvard graduate and a member of an old Boston family, was twenty-five years old and had been out of college but a few years. When the war started he had just begun work in the office of his father. Before relatives could object he had packed his trunk and was on the way to Europe.

Farnsworth wanted to be right in the midst of the fighting and refused to become a war correspondent, preferring to join the Foreign legion. His company, according to letters he wrote home, was in many desperate engagements in northern France.

Jail Vacant For Thirty Years.

Onelda, Kan., has had a jail for thirty years, but during that time only one person ever inhabited it. A tramp was once given a night's lodging in it. The jail is being used for housing fire fighting apparatus.

We Need a Strong Campaigner

The test of a candidate is, can he get the votes? In 1914 Hugh T. Miller, candidate for United States Senator, received 14,795 votes in the District. LYNCH RECEIVED MORE VOTES THAN THE HEAD OF THE TICKET.

In 1912 Gray's plurality in the District was 8,745; in 1914, Gray's plurality was only 3,491. LYNCH REDUCED GRAY'S PLURALITY 5,254.

What a man can do in the future is to be judged by what he has done in the past. If Lynch gets these results with a divided party he can redeem the Old Burnt District with a united party.

GIVE HIM ANOTHER CHANCE AND SEE

Republican success demands a hard, vigorous speaking campaign. The candidate must be a man in the vigor of middle-aged manhood. If Lynch is nominated there will be no watchful waiting in this campaign.

The Richmond high school team proved too fast for Rushville and the locals went down in defeat by a score of 35 to 25. The score made last night just about represents the superiority of the Richmond team over Rushville.

The attack of the Richmond team surpassed anything seen on the local floor this year and after seeing the game it was easy to understand how the team has won 16 out of 20

YOU CAN INCREASE WEIGHT

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 20 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Tonoline with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Tonoline—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from 5 to 10 pounds in the first two weeks by following this simple direction, and best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Tonoline does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and starch of what you have eaten into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—repairs it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Tonoline stops the waste and does it quickly and make the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds more of healthy flesh. Tonoline is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. For sale by Hargrove & Mullin.

games played this season. The victory of the Richmond team was no fluke, especially in the first half.

The two teams were evenly matched in the first half, but Richmond found itself in the final period. The basket shooting of the Quakers was deadly and the goals in the final half were made from all angles. The basket shooting was the best ever displayed on the home floor, and early in the last half it was evident that the only question was as to the size of the score.

Rushville was the first to score, when Stoops counted a field goal after the first minute of play. The locals, inspired by this, made two more baskets in rapid order and at one time the score stood 8 to 4 in favor of Rushville. Towards the close of the half, Brown and Porter, the Richmond forwards, got the basket located and then Richmond gradually pulled away. The half ended 15 to 12 in favor of Richmond.

The locals were slow in getting a start in the last half and Richmond had a lead of ten points before Rushville made a point. This naturally took some of the fight out of Rushville, but the team fought hard against odds and the ten point margin was as much as could be expected. The score and summary:

Richmond (35)	Rushville (25)
Field goals—Brown, 6; Porter, 5; Parker, 4; Meranda, 1; Stoops, 4; Caron, 3; Martin, 4; Frazier, 1.
Foul goals—Stoops, 1; Parker, 3.
Time of halves—20 minutes.
Referee—Evans.

They Are Not Dashed Off as They Appear on the Screen, But Are the Fruits of Hours of Careful and Painstaking Work.

Some of the attention that came to Chaplin with his fame was enjoyable. Thousands of people speak to Chaplin on the street without knowing him. They are always answered courteously. Not long ago, I saw two old people stop and stare and begin to nudge each other in great excitement. Charlie Chaplin was coming down the street. When he came near, the old man gathered his courage and said: "Hello, Charlie Chaplin." Chaplin lifted his hat in the odd way that he does on the screen and said: "Howdydo" and passed on. The old people were tickled to death.

The one thing that got the comedian's goat was speaking at banquets. Just once it is recorded that he was prevailed upon and human agony can have no fuller expression than this quivering actor waiting to speak his piece.

The culmination of his fame came probably with the offer of a New York theatrical man to give him $25,000 for an engagement of two weeks—an offer which the Essanay company is supposed to have met to induce him to stay away from the stage.

About Those Darling Pictures.
You often hear wise moving-picture fans tell how Charlie Chaplin produces a picture by just dashing out anything that comes into his head. Yes, indeed! Chaplin dashes through a scenario just about the way a watchmaker dashes through the work of repairing a repeater. All these uproariously funny Chaplin farces have been made slowly and painfully.

Chaplin never works from a regularly "written out" scenario. He gets a general idea, then slowly patches it together after getting the actors in front of the camera. Most of the scenarios are his own stuff. He says he thinks of them as he walks along the street, or in cafes, or any old where. Most of the time, Chaplin seems abstracted and as far away as in a dream. This is because he is usually manufacturing some moving-picture story.

He says he got one of the best hunches he ever had while eating lunch. It struck him so suddenly that he almost went out without paying the check.

The scenario of "His Trysting Place" came from an old comic song that Chaplin's father sang in vaudeville years ago. Wait for a "Hunch."

Once he has possession of the bunch, Chaplin begins directing the piece. His methods in this are as eccentric as are all his other ways.

Chaplin plants himself in a chair just out of range of the camera. As he always acts in the piece he is directing, he always wears his stage costume. He pulls the dinky little derby down over his eyes, spraddles his big shoes out in front of him and the actors begin.

Chaplin lets them do their comedy just as they please as long as they please him—which is about five seconds, usually. He sits and watches them with an expression which seems to say: "Good Lord, and these guys are getting money for doing this!" Then when he can't stand it any longer he gets up and shows them how to do it.

He very rarely tells them what to do; he shows them. The result is that every part in every Charlie Chaplin piece is acted by Charlie Chaplin himself. As he goes along, he makes almost innumerable changes and corrections. As he practically writes his scenarios after the acting has begun, it is intensely nervous work. It is as hard to get a chance to see him at work as it is to get into a lodge meeting.

Makes Two Kids Happy.
But to show you the instinctive kindness of the man, the other day two little street boys were found peeping in under the fence. One of the supers was going to drive them away, but Charlie called them in. There happened to be a lull in the proceedings, so he pretended to direct them in a comedy. To their delight, he put them through a little impromptu scenario. And it was noted that he was just as careful in directing their stuff as his own. The general public he refused to admit to the studio, thereby differing from some directors, who seem happiest when a crowd is looking on.

A very important and rather arduous part of picture work is selecting the "locations." In most companies this is the job of the assistant directors. Chaplin, however, does all his own searching for locations. However, it must be said that most of his locations are simple and easy to find.

In moving-picture work, a great deal of time is wasted while the camera men are fixing the light shields, and other necessary contrivances. During this time, the actors are left to their own devices. Chaplin fools around during these periods and unconsciously pulls some of his funniest comedy. While he was still with Keystone, they went down to the Ince ranch to produce that prehistoric film in which a great snake pulled "Amos" up a cliff. They had a whole basketful of snakes down on the beach. While they were waiting to begin, Chaplin started to juggling with the snakes in imitation of a circus snake charmer. It was so funny that it nearly broke up the business of the numerous Ince companies for the day.

Great Film Waster.

Chaplin, like many of the big directors, is a great waster of film. He never leaves a situation until he is thoroughly satisfied with it and he is hard to satisfy. He is very much given to re-takes, which is the most expensive habit in the movies. It is plain to the careful observer that Chaplin is working toward something entirely new in pictures. In a general way, his idea is that comedy should be more subtle and have more real story, although the horse-play antics he indulges in make that idea hardly credible.

He made the greatest advance in this direction in "The Tramp." In this, there was not only a real story, but a touch of real pathos which gave Chaplin a chance for the greatest "finish" that has ever been shown in any movie comedy. I think everyone who saw it will agree with me on that point.

Monday Circle, with Mrs. P. T. Allen at 531 North Perkins street, in the afternoon.

Elite Club, with Mrs. Sarah Guffin at 623 North Morgan street in the afternoon.

A party composed of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kelso, Mrs. Leona Cox, and Miss Ebba Goble attended the Auto Show in Indianapolis today.

Mahoning Council had the regular degree work at the Red Men's hall last evening, with a good attendance.

The Misses Dorothy Frazee, Janette Dean and Jean Sparks saw "The Birth of a Nation," in Indianapolis today, after which Janette Dean went to Franklin to spend the week-end with relatives.

Miss Estelle Jones, who is a charter member of the Departmental Club in Indianapolis, has been attending the series of parties being given by that club this week. Tuesday she was among the guests at the luncheon at the Claypool and today the same company of ladies will enjoy a card party at the Propyleum. Miss Jones went to Indianapolis this morning to be among the guests this afternoon.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Miss Elsie Scott of Raleigh celebrated her birthday yesterday in a way most surprising to her, for in the evening twenty-five of her friends burst in upon her and together, they spent a mirthful evening in dancing and playing various games. Carrying out the careful plans for the affair, the guests brought with them delicious refreshments which were served near the close of the pleasant party.

DELIGHTFUL AFTERNOON.

With Mrs. Charles Combs, who was formerly of this city, the members of the Glenwood Embroidery Club had a delightful meeting yesterday afternoon. In her lovely home the twelve guests spent a merry afternoon as they engaged in interesting discourse over their crocheting. Soon work was forgotten, however, with the service of a daintily prepared luncheon, consisting of a delicious salad course.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

Glen Carr of Milroy has the unusual distinction of having his birthday on February 29th. Last Tuesday, in celebrating his sixth birthday, when, incidentally, he was twenty-four years of age, his wife planned a surprise on him. About twenty friends and relatives gathered at the home rather stealthily and upon his arrival, the merry crowd which had assembled, as well as the sumptuous dinner which had been planned in his honor, was a complete surprise to him. The afternoon was spent in an equally joyous manner in celebration of the event.

A small and impromptu theatre party was given yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Madeline Laidley of Madison, who is the charming guest of the Misses Edith and Erema Wilk of this city, and has visited here frequently.

HONORING TEAM

Included in the royal reception given the members of the Richmond basketball team while here yesterday, was an informal party at the home of Miss Leota Mull last evening. Following the game, the jolly crowd enjoyed Miss Mull's hospitality and spent a merry evening together dancing and participating in several informal games. Light refreshments were served as the evening drew near a close. The guests at this pleasant party were the Misses Helen Hale, Ruth Higgins, Gertrude Wilkinson, Eva Young and Leota Mull and Roland Dollins, Russel Parks, Harold Brown, Cyril Pitts, and John Meranda.

DINNER PARTY

The birthday of Mrs. Lillian Osborne of West First street was pleasantly celebrated last evening when she entertained an agreeable company of friends who include the young ladies who are taking a course in a correspondence school. One of the gifts which Mrs. Osborne received was a lovely bouquet of carnations which added greatly to the decorative scheme used. A prettily appointed dinner was served followed by an enjoyable evening together. In this group of students were the Misses Lillian Gilson, Marie Fodder, Elnora Doll and Sarah Whiteside. One of the professors from Indianapolis, S. H. Bemenderfer, was also present.

WITH MRS. GREEN.

A dainty color combination of pink and white gave the home of Mrs. Lowell M. Green an unusually attractive and festive appearance this afternoon when she entertained the members of the Embroidery Club. Japanese peach blossoms and pink roses were the predominating flowers that were so profusely scattered through the rooms. In this airy and springlike setting, the winter day was forgotten by the amiable group of ladies that spent a delightful afternoon together. About five o'clock a tempting salad course was served in a dainty style. In connection with the luncheon clever St. Patrick's favors of pipes and shamrocks were given the guests. Among the thirty guests was Mrs. Darwin Medaris, the interesting house guest of Mrs. Green who will remain over the week-end.

As a result of the exchange given by the ladies of the Christian church of Sexton, over sixteen dollars were cleared for use in the church.

The boys of Mrs. F. G. Hackleman's Sunday school class of the M. E. church cleared about eight dollars today for the Easter offering by selling home-made egg-kisses and doughnuts.

The K. of C. initiation and entertainment to be given in Muncie this evening will be attended by the Misses Theresa and Helen Reardon and Ed Mullins, Leo King and Leo Mullins of this city.

Mrs. Joe Buschmohle entertained a few friends at tea yesterday afternoon, when her guests enjoyed a delightful time. After several games of cards, tea was served and the ladies had a merry chat over their tea cups.

T. O. G. DINNER

The semi-monthly meetings of the T. O. G. Club have grown to be especially charming gatherings in the form of dinner parties for the merry crowd of girls that form this organization. This afternoon the pleasing hostess was Miss Lois Reeves who furnished an entertaining afternoon for her guests. Music and chatting amused the guests until they were invited into the dining room where the spring flowers, the coming season was cheerfully anticipated. A fragrant bouquet of hyacinths was in the center of the table.

The two course dinner was both bountiful and dainty. It was greatly enjoyed by the jolly group of girls that surrounded the table. They were the Misses Dorothy Mulino, Catherine Wooden, Kathryn Guffin, Esther Anderson, Helen Frazee, Margaret Ball, Katherine Wyatt, and Dorothy Sparks.

The Tragedy

When Brother Tommy shines his shoes with very special care And stands before the glass to choose the tie that he shall wear, When he discards the little caps that perched above one ear And says that all the other chaps are wearing hats this year, When he invests in scarfpins made of imitation pearls His mother's mortally afraid that Tommy's got a girl.

No more he sneers at light gray spats or coats with swallowtails, Nor calls the fellows sissycats that clean their finger nails. He doesn't think it's wasting time to brush their tousled locks. He doesn't hold that it's a crime for boys to wear silk socks. And, viewing with extreme alarm his newborn fear of dirt, His mother seeks the magic charm and finds it—it's a skirt.

And though she bravely makes believe it brings her happiness, That she no longer has to grieve because he hates to dress, And though she says that she is glad that he's so trim and neat—Far more, indeed, than is his dad—when he goes on the street, Her eyes grow dim, for well she knows that nothing can restore Her little smudgy boy to her—the way he was before.

216,274 REACH PORT IN 1915.

American Line Holds Palm For Bringing Largest Number. According to the report issued the other day by W. C. Moore, the landing agent at Ellis Island, the New York Immigration station, the total number of passengers of all classes arriving at the port of New York during 1915 on 1,435 trips was 216,274. Of the total there were 59,797 first cabin, 61,010 second and 95,467 third class passengers.

The greatest number was brought to New York by the American line steamers in fifty trips, which was 23,401 passengers from Liverpool.

JUDGE DEFENDS BROTHER FINLY FANS WONDER ABOUT PHILLIES

said was a part of Finly's program. It was so awful, he said, that he would not read it. However, the paper was simply a statement of facts in Wayne county as regarded the agitation against Finly. It showed that Mr. Harper, who was an applicant for the postoffice at Cambridge City, was against Finly and that the same was true of R. O. Allen of Richmond, who was an applicant for the postoffice there.

"Other reflections made by Mr. Lontz in that speech were that Finly had sent out public documents to his constituents. On that question for which he was attacked, he established a reform. Instead of indiscriminately distributing public documents, he asks constituents to write for them. Finly was also attacked because he had written letter questioning constituents on military questions, which were not an issue in the last campaign. Lontz claims to be a business man and holds up Finly as a cheap, gum-shoe politician. Finly was the first Democratic congressman from this district in years, was accused of being such by opposing party men, but for Lontz, a Democratic candidate seeking the nomination, to do such a thing, it is indeed strange."

Judge Gray replied to a letter he said is being sent throughout the district what declares he (Judge Gray) went to Cambridge City and organized a Gray club of ten members. Judge Gray declared he never solicited a member, never attended a meeting of the club, but that such a club existed and that it had 257 charter members, with more joining all the time.

Judge Gray devoted the early part of his speech to a review of the early history of the Republican party—discussing the tariff—and defended his brother Finly's action and votes in congress.

Pat Moran and His Champions Start Training Season Confident of Winning Again.

MANY YOUNGSTERS IN LINE

Now Has Thirteen Twirlers and Other Positions Will be Equally as Hard to Fill.

(By United Press.)

Philadelphia, March 4.—Full of hope for the 1916 campaign though the fans are somewhat doubtful—Pat Moran and his Champion Phillies today attuned their ears to the flap-flap of the pennant at Phillies' Park masthead as they headed for Spring training. It is their first flag in so many years that they count 'em by decades and the Clan Moran enters the strife determined to repeat the pennant-winning performance of Grover Alexander and his noble cohorts.

Moran suffered reverses in the Snow-Season maneuvers. He wanted to pluck Rouse and Gedeon out of the Federal League grab bag. He didn't get them and the soft-spoken Gael had to revise his plans in mid-stream. However, the pennant-winners are practically intact and important new faces loom in the Phillies' family album. The strengthening of other teams and the Phils' fizzle in the World's Series are the causes of doubt among the fans.

One of Moran's hopes is to develop something of stellar luminosity from out the array of recruits and second-string men on hand. This he believes can be accomplished soon after the regular season gets under way, when the youngsters have had the benefit of a training trip and a few tangles in the big time.

Who will fill the outfield and infield positions when the season opens is problematical. Expected shakeups probably will mark the exit of more than one old timer. This already has been evidenced by the release of Beals Becker, veteran outfielder. This release showed that Moran has great confidence that Good or Devore will prove a valuable addition to the champions. It is certain Moran will carry a left-handed hitting outfielder and with Becker gone there is room for Good or Devore.

Cravath and Paskert, according to the dopsters, will have to do tall hustling to prevent the youngsters from crowding them out of the race. While both play consistent ball they are not expected to improve a great deal. Cravath in particular although an asset as a hitter, last year showed signs that his legs were giving him trouble.

Dave Shean, who was secured from Boston, is another recruit expected to strengthen weak spots. It is not unlikely that Bert Niehoff of last year's championship infield, will be out of the lineup. Shean does good work in keystone territory and the dopsters will not be surprised to see him gallivanting around second base.

The back-stop staff is not expected to be materially changed unless Killifer's bum arm goes entirely bad. Killifer is still in his prime and it is believed the expert attention given the injured member will see him pegging to second with his same old accuracy. Eddie Burns and Jack Adams also are expected to work again behind the plate.

Moran has thirteen twirlers to choose from. His recent purchase of Chief Bender, who played with the Baltimore Federals last season, gave Moran good timber for his elimination trials. Whether Bender can beat out six second-string pitchers depends on whether he can show some of the form he demonstrated five years ago. It is not believed Moran will carry more than seven mound men.

Alexander the Great again will be the moving spirit of the Phillies. During the winter he faithfully watched his condition and his arm is reported better than last year. With Chalmers, Mayer and Rixey steadily improving and Demaree,

Germany's "Spring Drive" WHAT WILL IT COUNT FOR?

With the results of the German efforts still uncertain, the correspondents are speculating over their meaning and the motives behind them.

Does Germany expect to win a decision in the West, to force France to make peace by taking Verdun, breaking through to the French line and again moving on Paris? Or, is she merely fortifying herself against an expected Allied drive, acting on the principle that the best defense is an attack? Or, is she merely after local gains, or trying to regain the ground lost last fall? Or, as some French writers hint, has military strategy been subordinated to political or dynastic considerations?

In THE LITERARY DIGEST for March 4th, the views of the American press, and war correspondents are incorporated in a comprehensive article which also includes maps, showing the Allies' losses.

OBITUARY

William W. Wolfe, an ex-soldier of the Civil War, was born in Rushville, Ind., Oct. 26th, 1845, died at the National Military Home, Marion, Ind., Thursday March 2, 1916.

At the early age of 16 he enlisted with his father, Lieut. Col. Joel Wolfe, in the first 16th Indiana Regiment, the regiment originally commanded by General P. A. Hackett, of this city, and served with that regiment as its drummer-boy. Later, and after the death of his father who was killed in battle, he reenlisted in the 123d Indiana Regiment and served with that organization until the close of the war.

He was buried in East Hill Cemetery in the family lot, Saturday March 4, 1916. 306t1

EXPECTS REDS TO FINISH GOOD

Herzog Has Strengthened Team And Believes he Will be in The Race This Year

SIX FORMER FED LEAGUERS
Has Fairly Good Pitching Staff And
His Infield is All Set—One
Outfielder Certain

(By United Press.)

Cincinnati, O., March 4.—Buck Herzog's Reds, re-inforced by six former Federal leaguers and a few recruits from the minors, will start for their new training camp at Shreveport, La., tomorrow, confident they are going to crawl out of the last division hole this season.

This will be Buck's third season as skipper of the Red Ship. He ran into eighth place in 1914 and seventh position last year. Both seasons, however, he did a lot of experimenting. He says he spent those two years putting his machine together and that this year he believes it will perform the way he wants it to.

There aren't many jobs open to the new Reds. However, should any of them display unexpected class Buck will make room for them. Tom Clark and Ivy Wingo, mainstays behind the bat last year, remain on the job with Emil Huhn, a Federal league product, added as third catcher.

Fred Mollwitz again will hold down first with Herzog at short and Heinie Groh at third. Bill Rodgers, who wound up last season at second will defend his position against Bill Louden and Jimmy Esmond, purchased from the Feds. Frank Emmer, an Ohio State league recruit, doesn't seem heavy enough for a big league job at present.

Tom Griffith is the only old outfielder sure of his job. He'll play right with George Anderson, late of the Buffalo Feds, Earl Neale, champion batsman of the Central league; John Beall, Kenneth Williams and Wade Killifer. Reds of 1915, are scrapping it out for the other berths.

Ten pitchers, three of them southpaws, are booked for the Dixieland frolic. Al Schulz, once a Yankee was bought from the Feds; Clarence Mitchell, recently of Denver and Frank Caporal, a New York State league product, are the southpaws. Schulz and Mitchell appear to be fixtures.

Dale, Toney McKenery and Schneider, right handers left over from last year, all satisfied Herzog last season that they are of big league calibre. Mosely, who pitched good ball for the Boston Red Sox before jumping to the Feds, is a welcome addition to the staff. Dougan and Dowd are the other right handers. Buck will have in camp. Both come well recommended.

The general verdict of baseball men last fall was that Herzog's team was better than its finish indicated. Injuries played with his team at various stages of the race. Buck believes he'll have no trouble finishing in the first division this year if his players only can escape more than an ordinary amount of sickness and mishaps.

WARNS AGAINST SENDING MONEY

Is Needed in This State To Fight
Tuberculosis Instead of Sending it Out

MANY SCHEMES ARE A FAKE

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., March 4.—Severance Burrage, president of the Indiana Society for the prevention of tuberculosis, today issued a warning to Hoosiers against sending money out of Indiana. Various associations are canvassing Indiana for out-of-state institutions and it is claim of local people that in some cases most of the money contributed goes to salaries and office expenses.

"Do not send money designed for tuberculosis prevention to other states, as the Indiana problem is large and sixty-two local associations are doing able and increasingly effective work," said Burrage.

Burrage commented on the activities of the Childrens' National Tuberculosis Society of Chicago which is maintaining canvassers to sell a magazine in Indiana. He said the National Association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis has investigated the Chicago society and found that only about one cent of ten contributed is used in tuberculosis work.

AUTO RACER TO MARRY TONIGHT

Louis Disbrow Will Wed Miss Harriet May Henry—Romance of One Year to End

GIVES UP DRIVING FOR HER

Was Love on First Sight as Far as he Was Concerned But She Was Not Certain

(By United Press.)

Chicago, March 4.—A romance— one year old—will culminate this evening in the marriage of Louis Arthur Disbrow, auto racer, and Miss Harriet May Henry.

A year ago Miss Henry was in Los Angeles; so was Louie Disbrow, Louie's mind was very much on the race track. Miss Henry's thoughts were very much away from it. With nothing much else to do Miss Henry accepted an invitation from friends to go to the auto tournament.

Louie, still in his driving clothes, met Miss Henry. It was love at first sight—at least on Louie's part, for the next day he asked Miss Henry to marry him.

But Miss Henry didn't quite know, in fact she thought auto racing too dangerous for the man she would marry.

"I knew that if I didn't stop Louie's racing before we were married, he wouldn't stop until I was wearing widow's weeds and I couldn't bear the thought of that," Miss Henry said today. "Louie's wanting to marry me and the fact that I convinced him he was capable of much bigger and better things than auto racing accounts for his giving up the speed track."

Six weeks ago Louie wired from Cleveland to Miss Henry in Chicago for her to be ready to "carry out your part of the bargain."

"I'm ready," Miss Henry wired back.

Louie caught the next train for Chicago, the day was set, and since, both have been busy getting ready for the wedding.

"It is Louie's untiring devotion to me that won me," Miss Henry said, and almost admitted that if he hadn't given in six weeks ago she would have taken him anyway—racing or no racing.

The marriage ceremony takes place at 6:30 this evening in the English room at the Blackstone hotel. Only a few relatives and intimate friends will attend. They will leave for Cleveland at once where Louie is president of an auto sales company. In August Mr. and Mrs. Disbrow will spend several weeks cruising with friends on the Atlantic coast.

Union Workmen Indorse Candidacy of J. M. Lontz

For Democratic Nomination as Representative in Congress

A committee appointed by the Moulders' Union of Richmond, Ind., has found John M. Lontz, candidate for the Democratic nomination as representative in congress, a man who has always been fair to labor and who can be depended upon to champion its cause. Lontz's labor record was investigated (and by a committee of men not in his employ) because he is one of the largest manufacturers of lawn mowers in the United States.

The results of the committee's investigation are contained in the following report it caused to be published in the Richmond Labor Herald of March 3, 1916:

"To the Editor of the Labor Herald:

"Dear Sir and Brother—We, the undersigned committee of Union Moulders, requested of John M. Lontz, candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress in the Sixth District, to meet with us, which he readily arranged to do, February 27.

"We had a long talk with Mr. Lontz, and we wish to say, from the statements he made to us, that he is very fair to organized labor.

"The wages he is paying his employees are far better than the average wages paid men in that class of work (manufacture of lawn mowers).

"Therefore, it is up to Organized Labor to be fair to this man who tries to be fair to it.

"What labor is working for is what Lontz is working for.

"Therefore, the committee is very well satisfied with the meeting it had with Lontz in regard to his views on Organized Labor.

Yours in Union,

GILBERT HERR,
R. E. NIEMAN
WILLIAM DINGLEY."

Former Congressman Johnson Urges Nomination of Lontz

In a letter addressed to Horace G. Yergin, attorney at law, Newcastle, Ind., former congressman Henry U. Johnson, one of the most brilliant men who ever represented the Sixth district in congress, vigorously indorses the candidacy of John M. Lontz for the Democratic congressional nomination. Mr. Johnson asserts that Mr. Lontz as the Democratic candidate can command the support of many Republicans and former Progressives. His letter to Mr. Yergin follows:

My Dear Yergin:—Have the Democratic friends in Henry county stopped to think carefully on the Democratic nomination for congress?

"Whoever is the Republican nominee, Lontz will poll many more votes against him than Gray can possibly command. In fact, Gray has lost strength in Wayne county very perceptibly. John M. Lontz is a popular man in Wayne county. His candidacy has been very heartily received by our people irrespective of party.

"I KNOW PERSONALLY OF REPUBLICANS AND PROGRESSIVES WHO WILL VOTE FOR HIM AT THE ELECTION IF HE IS NOMINATED.

"Lontz has a fine mind, has been a close student of political and economic questions for years and has unquestioned integrity. He is a very energetic man and will make a logical speech in good language upon the stump.

"WE DON'T WANT TO LOSE THIS CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT, and in Wayne county we can make our strongest fight by all odds with Lontz as our standard bearer.

"I cannot go into particulars in this brief letter, but a little inquiry will satisfy anyone that I have made no mistake in stating the relative strength of the two Democratic candidates in Wayne county.

"Very Truly Yours,

HENRY U. JOHNSON.

BIRD PROTECTION PRACTICAL

Dollar-and-Cents Value to Farmers Now Recognized.

The protection of birds has been put on a practical basis. The dollar-and-cents value of the feathered creatures to the American farmer and the country generally is now the basis of the bird protection movement in America. The man who has made it so is T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies, New York City.

For years bird protection was based on sentiment and sympathy. Now the bird protection movement is on a business basis. For instance, the wires recently brought the news that the quail of Minnesota and Kansas were starving by thousands on account of deep snows. Pearson immediately telegraphed $200 to each state to buy grain to feed the quail and he secured permission from the Postmaster General for the rural free delivery carriers to distribute it. On discovering that egret plumes were being smuggled in great number from Florida to New York City, he made a special trip to Washington and got the attorney general of the United States after the plume pirates.

Pearson is telling school children how to build bird-houses and bring song birds back to the home. He is going after the negro in the South and foreigners in the North whose shotguns, he says, have decimated the former number of songsters. He is raising money to pay wardens to protect the birds where they breed and now is starting a movement to make the cemeteries of the country sanctuaries where birds may feel safe from hunters and prowling cats. He is also giving a little attention on the side to Tabby, a bird destroyer.

Pearson, from his office at 1974 Broadway, New York City, is directing the bird protection movement in America. It is estimated he is saving the country many thousands of dollars a year by his practical methods.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast, the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have hollow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

WHY not give your lad the same training?

"When I was a growing lad, and came upon many words in my reading that I did not understand, my mother, instead of giving me the definition when I applied to her, uniformly sent me to the dictionary to learn it, and in this way I gradually learned many things besides the meaning of the individual word in question—among other things, how to use a dictionary, and the great pleasure and advantage there might be in the use of the dictionary. Afterwards, when I went to the village school, my chief diversion, after lessons were learned and before they were recited, was in turning over the pages of the 'Unabridged' of those days. Now the most modern Unabridged—the NEW INTERNATIONAL—gives me a pleasure of the same sort. So far as my knowledge extends, it is at present the best of the one-volume dictionaries, and quite sufficient for all ordinary uses. Even those who possess the splendid dictionaries in several volumes will yet find it a great convenience to have this, which is so compact, so full, and so trustworthy as to leave, in most cases, little to be desired."—Albert S. Cook, Ph.D., LL.D., Professor of the English Language and Literature, Yale Univ. April 28, 1911.

SHORT AND TRAGIC

Career of the First Submarine
Used in Real War.

SHE WAS BUILT IN MOBILE.

Constructed of Boiler Iron and Crude In Design, She Was Operated Against the Federal Ship Housatonic With Disastrous Results.

It is a fact that a submersible boat did actual service in the war between the states and was perhaps the first practical submarine used in actual warfare.

The boat was built in Mobile in 1864 by two men named Hundley and McClintock. It was of boiler iron, sharp at both ends and was about thirty feet long, five or six feet in beam and five or six feet deep. It was propelled by a screw, the shaft of which ran horizontally along the hold, almost from stern to stern and was turned by eight men, who sat four on each side of the shaft.

The only hatchway, placed well forward, was two feet in diameter, and it was closed by an iron cap that worked on a hinge and was airtight. In the forward part of the cap there was a clear glass bullseye, through which the pilot could see. The boat had water tight compartments, by filling of emptying which it could sink or rise. A ballast of iron rails was placed outside the hull, and by means of keys they could be detached so that the boat could rise instantly if necessary.

Besides a rudder, the boat had side paddles, or fins, which could be used to guide it up or down through the water.

The boat could go perhaps four knots an hour. It could remain submerged for half an hour or an hour without serious inconvenience to its crew, and once it remained as long as two hours under water without actual injury to them.

A floating torpedo was fastened to the boat by a line 100 feet long, and the inventor proposed that the boat should dive beneath the keel of the enemy's vessel and haul the torpedo after her. The triggers or sensitive primers of the torpedo would press against the ship's bottom, explode the torpedo and sink the vessel.

The boat was sent to Charleston to operate against the blockading fleet. General Beauregard had the torpedo fastened to the bow. It terminated in front with a sharp lance head, so that when the boat was driven against a ship the lance head would be forced into the ship below the water line and the torpedo fastened against the side. The boat was then to back off and explode the torpedo by a lanyard.

General Beauregard called on the Confederate fleet for volunteers, and Lieutenant Payne, a Virginian, and eight sailors volunteered. On the evening fixed for the expedition the crew had embarked, and the boat was submerged until only the combings of her hatch were above water. Lieutenant Payne was standing in the hatchway when the swell of a passing steamer rolled over the boat, and it sank instantly with her eight men. Lieutenant Payne sprang out of the hatchway as the boat sank, and he alone was saved.

In a few days she was raised, and again Payne volunteered and with him eight more men. The embarkation for the second attempt was made at Fort Sumter, and, as before, all being made ready, Payne, standing at his post in the hatchway, gave orders to cast off, when the boat careened and sank instantly. Payne sprang out, two of the men followed him, and the other six went down with the boat and perished.

Again the boat was raised, and her owner, Captain Hundley, took her for an experimental trip to Stone river, where, after going through her usual evolutions, she dove into deep water and disappeared. After a week's search she was found at an angle of forty degrees, her nose driven into the deep, soft mud of the bottom.

Her crew of nine men were standing, sitting or lying about in her hold, asphyxiated. Hundley had died at his post with a candle in one hand, while with the other he had been vainly trying to unclamp the hatch. The angle at which the boat had gone down had jammed the keys so that the men could not cast off the iron ballast that held them down.

Again the ill fated vessel was prepared for action, and volunteers were called for. Lieutenant Dixon of the Twenty-first Alabama volunteered and eight men with him.

The ship Housatonic was selected for attack and on a quiet night the brave crew set out from Charleston. Lieutenant Dixon guided the boat straight to the Housatonic, and the explosion tore open the ship's side, so that she went down with all her crew in two minutes.

The torpedo vessel never returned, and whether she went down with her enemy or drifted out to sea was long unknown. Many years after, in the work of deepening the bar off Charleston harbor, divers in submarine armor visited the wreck of the Housatonic and found the little torpedo vessel lying by her huge victim, and within her the bones of as devoted and daring men as ever went to sea.

In the history of the submarine certainly the Hundley is entitled to honorable mention.—Youth's Companion.

Wayne County Democratic Central Committee Endorses Lontz Candidacy

The Wayne County Democratic County Central Committee has adopted the following resolutions:

The candidacy of John M. Lontz for congress is making splendid progress throughout the Sixth District. This is not surprising when the qualities of the man and the existing political conditions are considered.

The first condition that confronts the Democracy is the significant fact that there will be only two candidates for congress in the district in the campaign of this year. The pertinent question is, where will the 9,200 votes go that were cast for the Progressive candidate in 1914?

The present representative, Mr. Gray, was elected in 1914 by a plurality over Mr. Lynch, Republican, by 3,400. If a Democratic representative be elected next November he must not only carry Mr. Gray's vote in 1914, but about 4,000 additional votes. It is no disparagement of Mr. Gray to admit, in view of his greatly reduced plurality of 1914 from that of 1912, that there is grave doubt of his ability to secure this needed additional vote either from the Progressives or from any other source.

Can John M. Lontz secure enough votes outside of the ranks of Democracy to be elected?

We believe he can get these votes and be elected for the following reasons:

FIRST—He is a new man, free from factional or political entanglements and personal enmities.

SECOND—He is an alert and successful business man with unusual executive and administrative ability, and also well versed in the principles of common law on which all statutory law is founded.

THIRD—He understands the political issues of the day and is especially well informed on the vital questions of the tariff and the currency. As a large exporter of lawn mowers he is well qualified to expose the fallacies of the Standpat "scare crow" that a high tariff is necessary to protect American labor from the pauper labor of Europe.

FOURTH—His personal popularity will bring to him if nominated, the aid of 2,000 votes outside his party in Wayne county alone.

1795—1852

"The student of Indiana history will look in vain for a more eminent name than that of James Whitcomb." (Woolen) He was descendant of a famous New England family of Puritans, and spent his boyhood on a farm near Cincinnati, O. Opposed to farm labor, he was frequently reprimanded by his father who feared for the boys future. Young Whitcomb was recognized as the most omniverous reader of his community, and often hired his brothers to do his work, promising them in return that he would someday donate them a farm. This promise he literally fulfilled in 1852.

Graduating from Transylvania University, he was admitted to the Kentucky bar in 1822. Two years later he moved to Bloomington there gained early recognition in his profession. For six years he was a member of the state senate, and served as chairman of the United States land office. Finding many of the early land grants written in the French and Spanish language, Whitcomb mastered these tongues. He continued to hold his position under VanBuren's administration.

Data For City Directory.

The population of Rushville, by actual county made by Al G. Winter of the Hoffman Directory company, is 6,620. This company is preparing a directory of Rushville and the count has just been completed. The directory will contain the names of all persons over 14 years old, but in gathering the data a complete count was made and the figures showed a population of 6,620. The copy for the directory will go to the printer next week and the book is expected to be ready for delivery between April 15 and 20.

TODAY'S ODEST STORY
New York, March 4.—A certain physician told of a new way to make the baby stop crying. The plan was successfully employed by a little boy to whose lot it fell to care for his baby brother a good deal. His mother marked the unwanted silence of the infant when brother was watching him, so she peeked around the door one day and saw how it was done. Brother, it seems, waited until the baby got his mouth open to let out a howl and then leaned over and bled down his throat.

FIFTH—He will carry Wayne county as he did in 1890 for auditor, when the Republicans had a normal majority of about 3,000, and his name on the Democratic ticket will add strength to the State and National tickets and every county ticket in the district.

SIXTH—He will meet the modern need and growing demand for more efficiency in the public service, which has not kept abreast with the progress and the methods of private business.

SEVENTH—He is not a radical nor extremist, but an honest, clear-headed man of self poise and sound judgment.

EIGHTH—As an employer he has proved the friend of labor, recognizing its rights as well as its dignity and importance.

NINTH—As a citizen he has been progressive and public spirited, always ready to aid enterprises for the welfare of the community both by his purse and his personal efforts.

TENTH—He is broad-minded and unselfish and can be depended on to give an earnest and loyal support to the principles of self government.

THE CHINESE WAY

Taking a Street Car Ride In the City of Shanghai.

A PUZZLE FOR A WHITE MAN.

Experience of an American Tourist Who Made a Bluff at Appearing to Know All the Ropes—A Patient Conductor and an Interested Cargo.

Writing of his adventures in the Chinese city of Shanghai, Homer Croy, in Leslie's Weekly, tells of the experience he had there in taking a ride on a street car:

The car was full of Chinamen, with not another white soul aboard, all sitting there in their skirts, their faces as expressionless as the heads of drums, but as soon as I came in their faces began to fill with interest, one nudging another until the whole car was looking at me.

I felt that something was wrong, but I could not figure out just what. I knew that it shouldn't create that much of a sensation for a white person to get on a car in Shanghai, but still they were looking at me as if I could be signed by a circus. I struggled to look unconcerned, but I knew that my cheeks were backfiring.

The conductor, in his suit of blue jeans, with a satchel over his shoulder, came up and said something to me, while I nodded with earnest carelessness and handed him a twenty cent piece, knowing that he could get enough out of it to satisfy his wants.

"Mun stau chong du?" he asked. I nodded again and held out my hand for the change, plainly showing that I made the trip on the line twice a day. "Mun stau chong du t'ing k'ing shon da?" he asked with more feeling, pointing down the street with one hand.

"I didn't catch the drift of his remarks, but I wasn't going to show him that I wasn't an old citizen and taxpayer, so I shook my head this time and nestled back in the seat as if it were all settled. But the conductor became more excited than ever, drafted the other hand and gurgled:

"Mun stau chong du t'ing k'ing shon da f'eah da t'ay sz whoo peh quong?"

So I waded in the other direction and tried to nestle again, but the conductor came back with another round of monosyllabic re-enforcements. With that his fellow men in the car came to his help with an arsenal of words, each one thinking that he could make it plain by raising his voice just a bit higher than any one else.

Reaching in his satchel, the conductor offered me a slip of paper spoiled with Chinese writing. I took it and started to stuff it nonchalantly into my pocket, but he became more excited than ever and came back with another string of empties, while I put the slip back into his hand as if it made not the slightest bit of difference in the world to me whether I kept it or whether he had it—I would leave the details of the trip to him.

The conductor used his hands some more and then turned and signaled for somebody from the car ahead. Another man in blue jeans with a satchel over his shoulder came and listened for a few blocks while my conductor explained. A Chinaman can never explain anything in a sentence or two; he has to go into details and go through his whole selling talk before he feels that the other has grasped the general drift of thought.

The other man bent over. He was evidently a master of English. "How muchee far you goee, mister? You payee how far you lidee."

Then I understood. When you get on you have to tell the conductor how far you are going, and he charges you for just that distance. But even after my fare was settled the natives on the car kept looking at me and pointing with their chins, as is their custom.

When I went to get off I saw several other white people piling off, but they were all from the front end of the first car. Then I looked at the markings on the car and saw what was the matter—I had been riding in the third class section with the coolies!

All the Shanghai street cars are divided up into classes—first, second and third. The white people all ride first class, the better to do Chinese second, while no one ever ventures third except the coolies.

Nature and Poetry.

Environment aids poetry, but does not create it. Nature is the grand agent in making poetry, and poetry is present wherever nature is. It sparkles on the sea, glows in the rainbow, flashes from the lightning and the star, peals in thunder, roars in the cataract and sings in the winds. Poetry is God's image reflected in nature, as in a mirror, and nature is present wherever man is.—Selected.

His Weak Point.

A man who takes a business view of things when recently asked his opinion of a person of quite a poetic temperament replied:

"Oh, he's one of those men who have soarings after the infinite and divings after the unfathomable, but who never pay cash!"

Something Else.

"Is loving a verb?"
"No; it's just plain nonsense."
Having made this reply to his daughter's question, Mr. Grouch looked a few daggers.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Laughing cheerfulness throws sunlight on all the paths of life.—Richter.

WEARS BEAUTIFUL KIMONA
GIFT OF JAPANESE LOVER

An Oriental smile always is vividly in the memory of Miss Florence Hawkins, the well known American soprano, who will appear at the Graham Annex auditorium on Friday evening, March 10 at 8:15, with the New York Metropolitan Opera Co. For it almost ended her grand opera career two years ago when an ardent young Japanese wooed her as only a Japanese can.

This young Japanese lover was of a family of high rank, but Miss Hawkins refused to give his name when asked about the romance the other day. She admitted, however, that once she was tempted to give up her career and lie away to the flowery kingdom with her Oriental admirer. That was when she was with the Chicago Grand Opera Company.

The young Japanese lover has never ceased to write letters of proposal to Miss Hawkins. His love letters, written in English, are quaint in their expressions.

And Miss Hawkins has retained a bit of the sentiment of this romance of the past. Each night she appears in a beautiful kimona, one of the gifts of this young man. She prizes it more than almost any other of her possessions. She guards it closely. This kimona is worn during the singing of "Madam Butterfly."

"Every time I put on that kimona," she said, "I see that Oriental smile, alluring and—well, I am an American and love my career."

NATIONAL BABY WEEK IS OPENED

Will Hold Spotlight For Six Days

—Backed by Federal Children's Bureau

EXHIBITS ARE PREPARED

Wisconsin Proposed State-Wide

Campaign And Texas Has Its

Baby Week Slogan

(By United Press.)

Washington, March 4.—Babies of four colors and two nationalities were the center of attraction in 2,029 communities in the United States, Alaska, the Philippines, Canada and the British West Indies today. They will hold the spotlight for the succeeding six days of National Baby Week, inaugurated by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and sponsored by the Federal Children's Bureau.

The babies don't know it, but they are the reason for hundreds of nursing courses, child welfare exhibits, window decorating contests, bazaars, essay contests and general meeting planned during the week in the United States and its possessions, not to mention again Canada and the British West Indies.

Wisconsin proposed a state-wide campaign to place emphasis on adequate nursing, care and instruction for prospective mothers. Texas has its own Baby Week slogan; "baby health is Texas wealth." Mississippi has a slogan of its own. North Dakota is holding an essay contest in public schools. A Colorado settlement 40 miles from a railroad, a woman's club on a western reclamation project, a Montana coal mining town with a large foreign population, a southern mill village and several farm women's clubs are holding celebrations.

Child welfare exhibits were prepared by women's clubs in Omaha and Lincoln. These will be sent throughout Nebraska. A Maryland town will have a birth registration day; a merchant has promised a tooth brush to every mother who goes to the city hall to find whether her baby's birth is registered. Another city inaugurated a competition for the "cleverest" widow plan.

Manila will hold its meetings during the week; the babies on two Indiana reservations will be brought from their wigwams, if their parents still affect wigwams, to share in the enlightenment, and to blink boredly during tribal conferences concerning them.

Albany, Baltimore, Boston, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Richmond, San Francisco, Washington and other large cities have programs. New York will have a baby week of its own late this Spring. Many rural communities have announced their intention to participate.

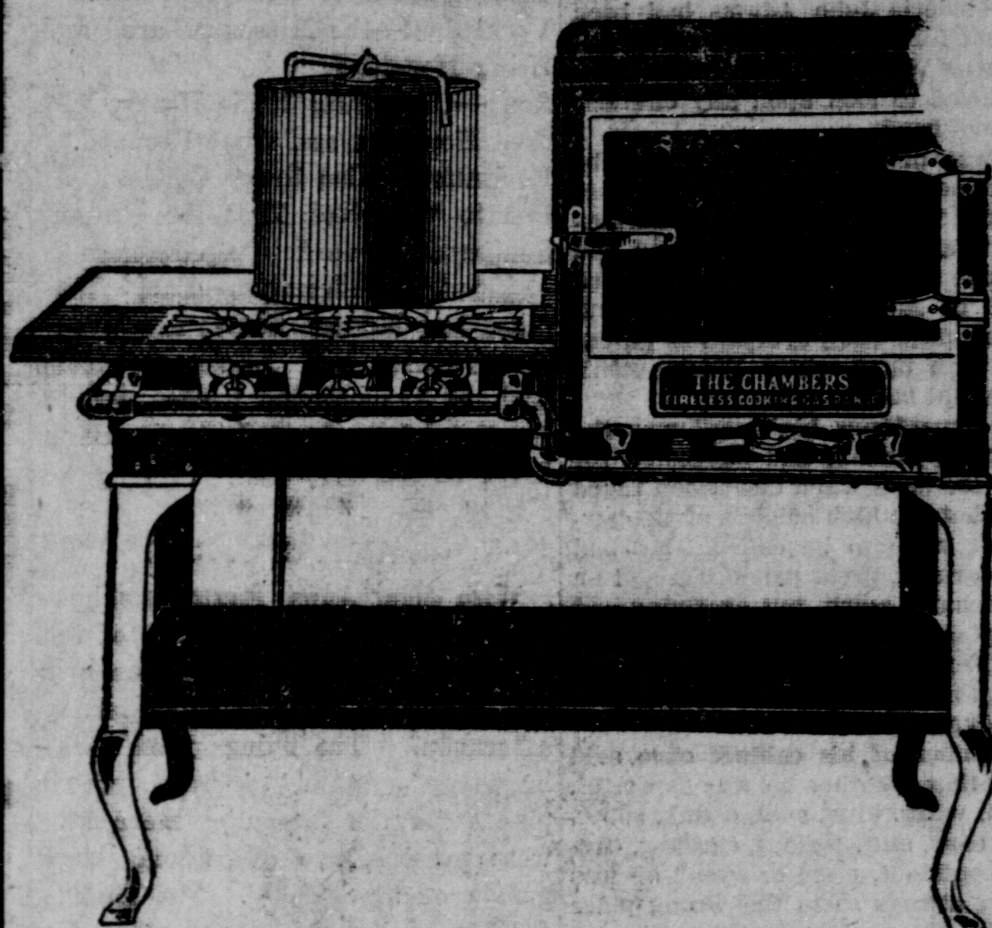

Plans differ, in some respects, in all of the 2,000 cities. But if all the celebrations are the successes the Children's Bureau believes they will be, International Baby ought to rise several points before the market closes next Saturday.

UNTACTFUL ADAMS

The Pathetic Unpopularity of Our Second President.

HE WAS VAIN AND GLAD OF IT

Then, Too, He Had an Obstinate Personality That Endowed Him With a Positive Genius For Putting Himself in the Worst Possible Light.

The choleric John Adams had been president for more than two years, but as long as Washington lived the country refused to look upon any one else as its real head.

The way of the transgressor may be hard indeed, but it is a path of roses compared with the thorny road the successor to a popular idol must tread, and when one reads the frankly expressed opinion of Adams' party friends and party enemies one's sympathies go out to the man upon whom Washington's presidential mantle fell.

"His superfluous highness" was the title the opposition had suggested for him in the days when discussion raged as to what the high officials of the government were to be called. He had great learning, great patriotism and an unquenchable spirit, but overlying and enveloping them all was a positive genius for doing and saying untactful things, for appearing at the worst possible advantage.

A member of his cabinet once said of him that whether he was "sportful, playful, witty, kind, cold, drunk, sober, angry, easy, stiff, jealous, careless, cautious, confident, close or open" he was "almost always so in the wrong place and with the wrong person."

The kindly Franklin characterized him as "always honest, sometimes great, but often mad." One less genial remarked that even in his soberest moments Adams was "the greatest marplot in nature." And John Randolph of Roanoke, whose tongue added the poison of ridicule to the bitterness of gall, called him "that political Malvollo."

Adams thought Washington's talents overrated and on becoming president in his turn was ambitious to make a record brilliant enough to overshadow him. It was certainly no easy task, even without the handicap of Adams' obstinate personality.

He knew that he was vain. "Thank God I am so!" he exclaimed. "Vanity is the cordial drop which makes the bitter cup of life go down." But it had its lingering after taste, and justly proud of his record—having, as one of his biographers puts it, "stepped from his little country law office and proved himself a match for the diplomats of Europe"—Adams resented the narrow margin by which he had been elected, calling himself with some bitterness "the president of three votes only."

A vice president can be removed by nothing short of crime or physical incapacity, and Jefferson remained, an ever present and irritating thorn in Adams' side. Adams had found it hard to learn and accept the passive role demanded by the office, and he evidently took some satisfaction in impressing the same uncongenial lessons upon his successor.

Jefferson asserted that he was never consulted upon any question of government after Adams had been two days in power. And he did not make the charge in the humorous mood of a later incumbent, who used to declare that his chief had asked his advice only once and that was about the wording of a Thanksgiving proclamation.

"I believe he always liked me," Adams admitted in a retrospect of his long career, "but he detested Hamilton and my whole administration. Then, he wished to be president of the United States, and I stood in his way. So he did everything that he could to pull me down. But if I should quarrel with him for that I might quarrel with every one I had anything to do with in life. . . . Did you ever hear the lines:

"I love my friend as well as you,
But why should he obstruct my view?
'Tis for my enemies and hope they may find mercy in heaven."—"Our Nation in the Building," by Helen Nicolay, in Century Magazine.

Wesley's Father and Wesley.

One cleric well known to fame who took snuff and loved his pipe was Samuel Wesley, rector of Epworth, Lincolnshire, from 1697 to 1735. He not only smoked his pipe, but sang its praises:

In these raw mornings, when I'm freezing ripe,
What can compare with a tobacco pipe?
Primed, cocked and toucht, 'twould better heat a man
Than the Bath fagots or Scotch warming pan.

Samuel's greater son, John Wesley, did not share the parental love of a pipe. He spoke of the use of tobacco as "an uncleanly and unwholesome self-indulgence" and described snuffing as a "silly, nasty, dirty custom."—Westminster Gazette.

What the Well Revealed.

One of the first deep wells drilled in the west was put down near Huxley, Nev., by the Central Pacific railway in 1881, in a search for good water. The boring reached a depth of 2,750 feet, but the water obtained was of very unsatisfactory quality. At 1,700 feet the drill encountered a bed of "petrified clams," and the record states that at 1,900 feet well preserved "redwood timber" was found.—Argonaut.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

The good programs which have marked the meetings of the Literary Society of the Orange high school seem to continue for last evening another equally good one was enjoyed when a large per cent. of the members met in the school building. The delightful evening was spent in listening to the following numbers: Piano solo—Miss Florence Paxton. Recitation—Miss Frances Medd. Vocal duet—the Misses Mildred and Helen Houchins. Song—the Misses Nellie Henry, Mildred Houchins and Alice Leonard. Recitation—Miss Grace Coffee. Debate "Resolved That the Present Sentiment Toward Preparedness is Justified," Affirmative—Earl Williams and Monroe Starr; negative—James Clifton and Edwin Johnson, both of Connorsville. The judges for the debate decided six to one in favor of the negative.

ORANGE C. W. B. M.

With Mrs. Anna Paxton as hostess and leader, the members of the Orange C. W. B. M. were pleasantly and profitably entertained yesterday afternoon. The living room was brightened with several potted plants for the fifteen or more who were present, two of whom were guests of the society. The leading feature of the afternoon was the program which was excellently prepared and rendered, the following numbers being given:

"Some results of missionary work for children and the way to enlist them for missions"—Mrs. Paxton. Hymn.

Bible reading—Proverbs 22. Hymn.

Prayer. Business session.

NEW YORK FASHION NOTES

*****

BY MARGARET MASON.

"Can she make a cherry pie, Billy boy, Billy boy?"

"Now really that's a question very silly.

All the cherries green and red
She is wearing on her head.

In a cap-a-pie effect," says little Billy.

New York, March 4.—A cherry may play it three ways and still be well placed—in a pie, a cocktail or on milady's bonnet. All three are ideal settings for a cherry, but naturally the third is the charm. Just as every cloud has a silver lining, so does every smart spring hat have its first fruits and the cherry is the favorite of the bunch. Dame Fashion is masquerading as Pomona. In consequence, every peach, topped with a few cherries, goes around looking like a mixed fruit salad. It's quite all right if the peach confines the cherries that go to her head to the ones on her hat. If she lets the cherrie in a cocktail to her head too she is apt to look more like a compote. See Webster's Unabridged:

"Compote:—A combination of stewed fruit." The shape of the new hats—cunning little high crowned effects without brims, or the fetching little Directoire bonnets, lend themselves very prettily to the cherry habit. Following the cherry, the favorite fruits for hats are green and purple grapes, peaches, plums, strawberries, oranges, lemons and apples for daughters of Eve. Some of the big, flat garden hats have an array of fruit around their flat, platelike brims, their vivid colors glowing against a background of glossy green leaves for all the world like Mike the Dago's pushcart display.

But why scratch the rest of the 57 varieties of the sartorial menu? Surely a Cassaba Caneau, a Banana Bonnet or a Pineapple Picture Hat would be tasty little headpieces for the fruitful fashions.

Just to what lengths can fruits go is best answered by the fact that not only do they grow on spring umbrella handles neck ruffs, belts, sash ends, jacket lapels, blouses frocks, negligees and even lingerie are clusters of them grafted.

The new lawns, organdies and spring silks are printed in fruit designs and even platinum, in enamel and precious stones.

Verily an up to date peach in a cherry hat and a pear of lemon kid gloves according to the currant modes could never be a goosberry in any crowd. Rather is she the apple of every male eye, with all of them plum crazy about her.

INTEND TO ERECT MANY EXHIBITS

State Departments Will Take Part at National Conference of Charities and Correction.

WILL ALL BE EDUCATIONAL

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., March 4.—Some fourteen different state departments have signified their intention to erect exhibits in the state house to remain the week of May 10-17, during the sessions of the National Conference of Charities and Correction.

The exhibits will be educational, and will have for their purpose the showing of the progress of the different departments in their work, as well as to inculcate the purpose of the department.

The state board of health, under the direction of Dr. J. N. Hurty and Dr. W. F. King, will have an exhibit on disease prevention. The various displays which they plan to make have for their purpose a showing of the things that cause disease and how to prevent disease at its source.

The state board of health exhibit will come under the general welfare division. Other exhibits will be under the enactment and enforcement of law, state institutions and public schools, public and private charities, and national and miscellaneous. Governor Ralston is the honorary chairman of the exhibits committee, and is taking part in the arrangements. Frank C. Jordan, Indianapolis, is the active chairman.

PREACHER, 41, ADOPTED.

Rev. Henry Natsch to Take Name of His Legal Mother.

New York.—The new law permitting the adoption of adults made it possible for Mrs. Sarah Ella Fernald, seventy-one years old and widow of Francis P. Fernald, to fulfill a hope of years when Surrogate Fowler permitted her to adopt the Rev. Henry Natsch, forty-one years old. With his wife the clergyman resides at the home of Mrs. Fernald, 34 West Seventy-second street.

Mrs. Fernald was the mother of four children, all of whom are dead, the last dying in 1899. Her husband died in 1907. Her only living relative is an aunt, eighty years old, who has no relatives. She had hoped to be able to perpetuate the family name through an adoption.

She met Mr. Natsch when he was a student in the Union Theological seminary in 1902 and shortly after he went west to live with Mr. and Mrs. Fernald. He married Miss Ethel Helena Budington on Dec. 2, 1914, and the two made their home with Mrs. Fernald. Mr. Natsch now becomes Henry Natsch Fernald, and his wife's name changes accordingly. Mrs. Fernald has a substantial estate, which, she says, she will leave to her adopted son.

FORTY-NINTH STATE URGED.

Upper Peninsula of Michigan Seeks Entrance as Superior.

Calumet, Mich.—Plans for a campaign to carve the forty-ninth state of the Union out of the "upper peninsula" of Michigan, under the name "Superior," were discussed here by Roger M. Andrews, proprietor of the Menominee Herald-Leader, at the annual banquet of the Calumet Business Men's association.

He asserted that the assessed valuation of the district exceeds that of any one of seventeen states which he named and laid stress upon the fact that it is isolated from the rest of the state.

BABY WEEK CELEBRATION

(By United Press.)

Evansville, Ind., March 4.—All of Evansville's clubs and associations joined hands today for the local celebration of Baby Week, which is a national affair. Out-of-town lecturers will be heard and baby will come into its own. The slogan adopted is, "This is a business proposition, not charity."

Rich as Croesus.

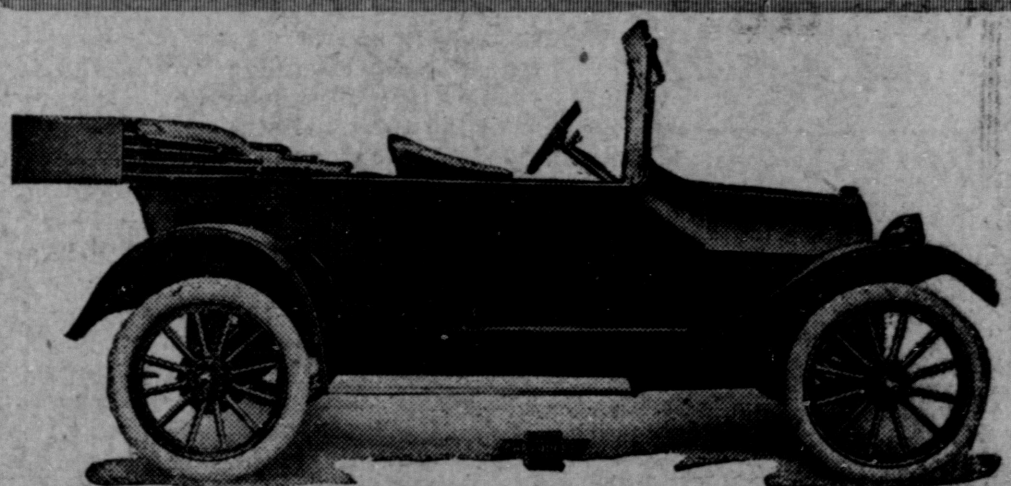

The boys were bragging about their parents. "I bet my father is richer than your father," said one. "He has to pay lots and lots of money for taxes every year." "That's nothing," retorted the other. ## HOLDS STATUTE State Librarian CONSTITUTIONAL

Judge Sparks Overrules Demurrer of City to Partial Answer of Service Commission.

OUTGROWTH OF GAS CASES

Court Declares Power to Fix Rates is Vested in State by Legislative Authority.

Judge Sparks this morning overruled the demurrer of the City of Rushville to a partial answer of the Public Service Commission in the suit brought by the city against the commission asking for an injunction, thus virtually declaring the law constitutional.

The demurrer raised the question of the validity of the law and the argument at the time attracted wide attention, as by sustaining the demurrer the court would have declared the law unconstitutional. In giving his decision, Judge Sparks stated that the question of rates did not enter into the question, as no mention was made as to whether the rate here was excessive.

By overruling the demurrer Judge Sparks held that the power to fix rates was invested in the state by legislative authority and that cities never did have the power under the legislature to regulate rates. The state's power to regulate rates, according to the ruling of the court, is vested in the Public Service Commission by the legislature and by virtue of this the law is held to be constitutional. The city argued that the state had no power over the city in fixing rates, but Judge Sparks ruled that the city was a part of the state and that the state did have power over the city.

In the argument before the court on the demurrer Attorney General Stotsenburg and Bert New legal advisor to the governor, appeared for the commission and the gas companies were represented by Thomas M. Green. John H. Kiplinger represented the city. A large number of citations were given the court. With the overruling of the demurrer the case will now be tried on the original question regarding the injunction to prevent the commission from placing in effect the rate to be charged for gas in the city of Rushville.

The Walter A. Wood Mowing and Reaping Machine Company was given a judgment against John E. Paxton on notes in the sum of $260.38. The original demand was $1,200, but part of these notes had been paid.

ALLOWED TIME TO FILL THE LIST

Lester Smith, Progressive County Chairman, Given Extra Day And Appoints Judges.

CHANGES FEW APPOINTMENTS

If Election Officials do Not Show up, Balance of Board Will Fill the Vacancy.

The board of election commissioners avoided the difficulty of selecting some nineteen or twenty Progressive judges for the primary Tuesday by giving Lester Smith, the county chairman, additional time in which to file a complete list. This was done about four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The election board believed this was the easiest way out of the difficulty. According to the law, the names of the officers had to be filed by midnight Thursday. When the list was filed nineteen places had not been filled. It was up to the board to fill the vacancies, but as the members did not know who were Progressives and who were not, they decided to let Smith name his officials and then the appointments would be made.

In the revised list as placed on file several names were changed in order that none of the judges would be related to any candidates. This is in accordance with the law. In case the election officials do not show up at the polls on election day the vacancy is filled by selecting someone to serve by the balance of the board.

The complete list of Progressive judges is as follows:

Rushville—No. 1, J. C. Craig; No. 2, Ned Abercrombie; No. 3, Charles G. Smyth; No. 4, William Wylie; No. 5, Joseph Mary; No. 6, Elbury Pent; No. 7, Joe Endicott; No. 8, David Sloan; No. 9, David Glone; No. 10, W. F. Taylor.

Noble—No. 1, K. Kelso; No. 2, E. E. Morris.

Ripley—No. 1, Cassius Gray; No. 2, Oliver S. Earnest; No. 3, Murray Moore.

Orange—No. 1, W. E. Roth; No. 2, Harry Spaulding.

Jackson—No. 1, James Gartin.

Anderson—No. 1, Cash King; No. 2, Clarence Richey.

Posey—No. 1, S. D. Sampson; No. 2, Art Winslow.

Walker—No. 1, Oscar Miller; No. 2, Byron Westerfield.

Richland—No. 1, Joe Fey.

Washington—No. 1, Fred A. Bills; No. 2, Curtha Wagoner.

FAILS TO GET INDICTMENT

Carlton Chaney Has Witnesses Before Shelby Grand Jury.

The Shelby county grand jury adjourned yesterday without returning any indictment against Dr. J. T. Paxton of this city. It became known that Carlton Chaney of near Glenwood has seven or eight witnesses before the grand jury in an effort to indict Dr. Paxton on charges growing out of one of the damage suits involving Dr. Paxton and Chaney. Judge Blair quashed one indictment against Dr. Paxton. The grand jury adjourned yesterday returning two indictments, but neither of them was against the local physician.

JUDGE DEFENDS BROTHER FINLY

George Gray of Connersville Makes Victrola Attack on Congressman's Enemies.

REPLIES TO STATEMENTS

Says Disappointed Office Seekers Stabbed Finly in Back While he Was at Post of Duty.

Defending his "Brother Finly's" record in congress and at the same time hitting back at some of what he termed "disappointed postoffice applicants" for stabbing Congressman Gray in the back while he is in Washington attending to his duties, Judge Gray of Connersville Friday night made the first primary campaign speech in behalf of Representative Gray here.

Judge Gray excused the size of the crowd—twenty-eight voters and four boys—because the night was bad and the meeting had not been extensively advertised. The small attendance, however, did not lessen Judge Gray's vitrola attack on disappointed office seekers and the "partisan Republican newspapers of Wayne county."

Judge Gray did not mince words with "Brother Finly's" opponent, John M. Lontz of Richmond. He held up to ridicule the two explanations for Lontz's candidacy—one by his friends and another by himself.

As one explanation for Lontz's candidacy, Judge Gray called attention to the letter of Lontz to Jack W. Harper, disappointed applicant for the Cambridge City postoffice. In that communication which Gray read, Lontz said he felt it was a public duty and that he owed it to the community to become a candidate and serve the people. On the other hand, the judge declared, Lontz said in his first formal speech at a banquet in his honor at Richmond recently that he had previously written a letter to Congressman Adair, urging him to become a candidate for governor, and that his (Lontz's) friends had taken the letter, placed the words "member of congress" in place of "governor" and changed Adair's name to Lontz, so that he (Lontz) was placed in the position of resisting his own appeal, which he could not do.

While Finly has remained at his post attending to his duties," said Judge Gray, "there have been some gentlemen trying to shoot him in the back. The Republican press of the district have been very hostile. There is no Democratic newspaper in Wayne county and the two partisan Republican newspapers there have attacked Finly viciously, without justification. They attacked him because there had been adopted some fifty-mile motor mail routes. This caused some displeasure among the patrons and the newspapers blamed Finly.

"Congressman Finly Gray, while he was resting at home during recess, hurried to Washington to oppose the change in the rural mail service before the routes were mapped out. I have a speech of Finly's showing the statement of the fourth assistant postmaster general to the effect that Finly Gray opposed the motorized rural routes.

"While that was going on, some fellows who did not get postoffices joined forces with the hostile press. There were many applicants for postoffices. Doubtless all of them could have served as well as the ones appointed. But the ambition of all of them could not be gratified.

"At the banquet at Richmond, Lontz talked antagonistic in a general way to Finly. In his speech he picked up a piece of paper that he

INSPECTORS GET SUPPLIES TODAY

All Legal Steps Necessary For Distribution in General Election Are Required.

CONFUSION OVER VOTING

Second Choice Vote Cast When More Than One Candidate—Rotation of Candidates.

Primary election inspectors called at the office of A. M. Taylor, clerk of the circuit court, today and received their supplies for the election which will be held next Tuesday. The supplies were all sealed, the ballots, poll books, tally sheets and other necessary supplies being distributed by precincts according to the number needed.

The commission had the supplies for each precinct in a separate package and marked for the inspector. This made the distribution of the supplies a small task. All the inspectors had to do was to ask for his supplies and give a receipt for them. There are thirty-one precincts in the county.

In this primary, all the legal steps that are required in distributing supplies for a general election have to be taken. The law safe-guarding general election supplies applies to the supplies for the primary. It is incumbent, therefore, upon inspectors and all other members of the primary boards to see to it that none of the supplies is tampered with in any way after coming into the board's hands.

That the modified preferential system of voting which has been adopted for the Indiana primary election is confusing to many voters, is indicating by the large number of inquiries made concerning the manner of marking the ballots. As this method is a departure to some extent from the form of voting that has been used for many years it is natural that some confusion should follow but the system when thoroughly understood is not as complicated as many are prone to believe.

Although the names of the candidates when four or more are making the race for the same office do not appear in the same rotation on all the ballots, no difficulty should be experienced by any voter in supporting his favorite candidates as each will have the same number on all the ballots. On some the numbers may be conservative but on other lower numbers may appear below higher ones and again they may be mixed, according to the ballot which is handed the voter.

There will only be one ticket for each party. The Republican ticket will be red, the Democratic ticket white and the Progressive ticket yellow. When a voter enters the polls he will ask the judges for a ticket of his political faith. Only one will be given. This precaution is taken for in the past it is known that members of one party have voted in the primaries of another in order to secure the nomination of some candidate who might be their choice because of his qualifications or because he believes such candidate to be the weakest in the field. It is known that while occasionally some unscrupulous voter will go into the polls of another party to vote for the latter reason, but under the new primary law this is made impossible for when the ballot is handed to a voter his name and his political affiliation are recorded and made a matter of record. The book containing this information is placed on file in the office of the county clerk and is open to public inspection.

WRANGLE IN THE SENATE

Several Members Say Three Americans Sailed on Liner Today at Own Risk.

(By United Press.)

Washington, March 4.—If three Americans—Charles Bellows and wife of Brooklyn, and W. W. Nichols of Chicago—who sailed on the armed liner Canopus from New York today should come to their death as a result of a torpedo attack, they are victims of their own bravado, and the United States should not go to war over them, was the sentiment expressed on the floor by five senators today.

Jones, McCumber, Hitchcock and Clapp joined in a continuation of yesterday's assault on the administration's policy which they said would force the nation into war if only one reckless American was killed.

"The American people do not understand fine-spun international law but they can see the awful injustice of asking us to send 100,000,000 people to war to pay for the criminal bravado and recklessness of these persons," said Jones.

The House of Representatives will not vote until Tuesday on the question of whether congress should interfere with the president in the conduct of international problems.

After a day of perplexity over what the senate's action yesterday really amounted to, a threatened division over the procedure and a fight within their own ranks on when to force the vote the administration supporters finally announced the postponement.

The announcement was received with unconcealed delight by members of the Indiana delegation for the vote will come on the day they go before the people for renomination. They had feared that the president's request for a showdown would force them into an embarrassing position at home before the Indiana primaries and their attitude was one factor in obtaining the postponement.

The wide difference of opinion in the rules committee—the body that must pave the way for a vote on the McLemore resolution—was mainly responsible for delay but the absence of many members was a factor.

Division among the president's supporters in the House broke out today. After several of his friends had mapped out a program to postpone until Monday a vote in the house on the McLemore resolution, because of the absence of members, a number of others, including Representatives Sherley, Allen and Glass, began a fight to force a vote today, claiming that the muddle created by the senate vote should be immediately cleared up.

Sherley and his coterie of "immediate action" advocates were loud in their condemnation of any postponement and immediately after that program was announced started canvassing the rules committee membership to ascertain whether they could muster enough adherents there to have a rule reported this afternoon for immediate consideration of the McLemore measure.

Acting Chairman Pou of the rules committee admitted that the resolution might yet be brought before the house in view of the strength of the "immediate action" advocates.

Speaker Clark said he thought the matter would go over until Monday, but would not be sure until after he conferred with the leaders. Clark's private office was the scene of many conferences with leaders of both factions, including Pou, Floor Leader Kitchen and Chairman Flood of the foreign affairs committee participating.

Strong sentiment among the house membership developed in favor of immediate action. The Republicans appeared willing to take the vote today. Some administration leaders declared postponement was an indirect slap at the president who in his letter to Pou requested "prompt action."

P. J. LYNCH

of New Castle

Candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress from the Sixth district is a self-made man and according to his old friends and neighbors he has done a good job. Mr. Lynch is 42 years old, having been born in Chester County, Pennsylvania, on April 19, 1874. He was the youngest of ten children—five boys and five girls. His father died when he was a year and a half old, leaving little. The stout-hearted mother took up the hard struggle, and when young Lynch had reached the age of fifteen he had become the mother's strong prop in her struggle with the world. Young Lynch's first job paid him the munificent sum of $150 per year. At the end of his first year he turned over to his mother $147.50 of his earnings. He began life as a day laborer and was not unfamiliar with the wheelbarrow and the shovel. He learned to work with his hands and to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow.

Young Lynch early displayed the traits that had been his heritage from his father and mother. With fine courage he began the battle of life, educating himself as he could create the opportunities. At an early age he secured a place with the big floral house of Dingee & Conard at West Grove, Pennsylvania, and it was but a few years until he had mastered the business and was one of the owners and managers of this mammoth business.

He early manifested an interest in political affairs, identifying himself with the Republican party. In 1904 he was elected a delegate to the Republican national convention from Pennsylvania, and it was due to the firm stand that he took in a meeting of the Pennsylvania delegation on the night before the Republican National Convention assembled in 1904 that the vote of Pennsylvania was cast solidly for Theodore Roosevelt for the presidential nomination. The Quay machine was against Roosevelt and if the organization had been able to master a solid delegation from that state it is probable that some other man than Roosevelt would have been the Republican presidential nominee that year. Lynch, in the face of personal dangers, declined to wear a Quay collar.

Some years ago Mr. Lynch purchased a large floral business in "The City of Roses" and since that time New Castle has been his home. He is married and has two sons. His wife formerly was Miss Caroline Forkner.

In the campaign of 1914 Mr. Lynch received by acclamation the Republican nomination for Congress in the Sixth District, and although, owing to the division in the Party the situation looked like a forlorn hope he went into the campaign with the same vigor and enthusiasm that has characterized all of his undertakings in life. He carried on one of the most active speaking campaigns that was ever known in the District and while he presented the Republican cause with great clearness and force he accorded to other men the right to differ from him in their honest political opinions and was never guilty of any utterance that might insult the most ardent Progressive or adherent of other Parties.

As a result of this campaign he received more votes than Hugh Th Miller, the head of the ticket, as candidate for the United States Senator and reduced Finly Gray's plurality 5,234 votes.

He is well versed in the principles of his party and is all the more in earnest in their advocacy on account of the fact that his business interests are such that he has felt the sting of Democratic inefficiency as much as any man in the District.

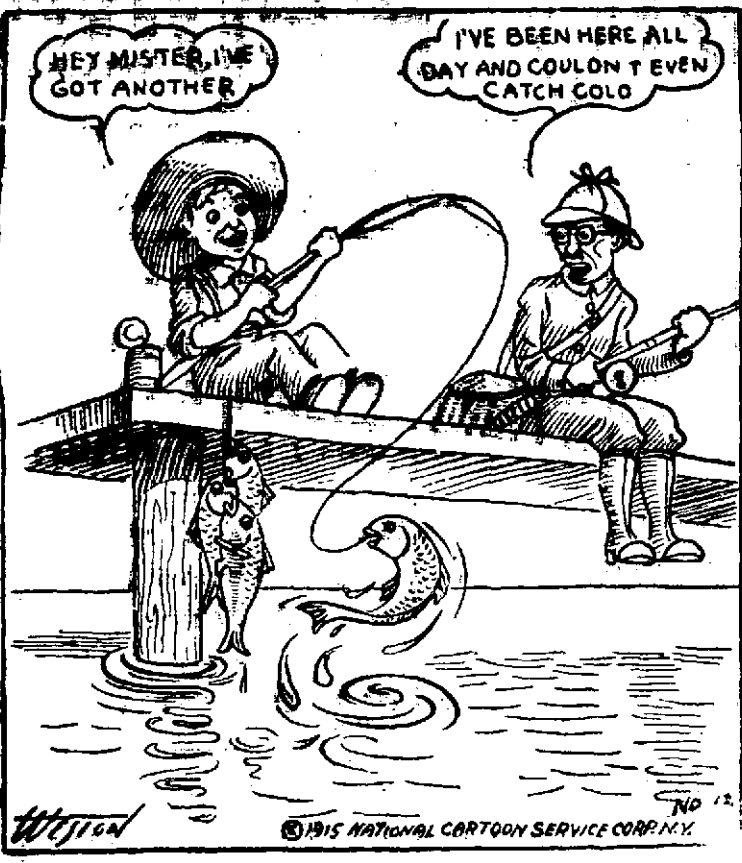

His personal character is above reproach and his personality as a man, and power as a speaker is such that he will do more to bring about a rousing Republican victory in the Sixth District, the coming Fall than any man who could be put on the ticket.

For over fifty years the Old Burnt District was represented by a Republican in Congress. Unfortunately a few years ago this honorable record was broken and it fell into the hands of the Democracy.

The question this campaign is shall it be put back where it rightfully belongs? Shall the Republicans of the District again come into their own?

The one man in the District to assure this result is Patrick J. Lynch. In 1914, with a divided party he came nearer doing it than any man expected. His results were surprising. This year, with the Party substantially a unity, his nomination can mean but one thing and that is that in the Fall of 1916 he will start the old District on another fifty years of honorable and efficient Republican representation.

Vote for "33" Ezekiel M. Jones (better known as "Zeke") a Republican Candidate for Sheriff, from Ripley Township, Rush County, at Primary March 7, 1916.

I have found it absolutely impossible to see all of the voters before the Primary to solicit their support for my candidacy for Republican nomination for Sheriff of Rush County, but I desire to say that I have always been a loyal, staunch and true blue Republican. I live in Ripley Township now, and cast my first vote in Rush County for James G. Blaine. I nor any of my immediate family have never held nor asked for any public office nor have I been the nominee for any except that I was a candidate in 1912 for Sheriff of Rush County and withdrew on the fourth ballot in the county delegate convention, and went out and worked my best for the ticket, as I always have done.

FOR REFERENCE to my Republicanism or qualifications for this office I refer you to any business man or bank in Rush county.

I CAN BE ELECTED IF NOMINATED.

MY NUMBER ON BALLOT WILL BE 33

I thank you in advance for your support, yours very truly,

Amusements

The Princess offers a two act feature "The Dangers of Being Lonesome" for the first picture tonight. Nellie Craig and Bryant Washburn are featured. The other picture is a comedy entitled "Romantic Reggie." Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew are featured. The program will end with the comedy "Animated Nooz Pictorial." It is a burlesque on current events. Next Monday matinee and night the feature production "Clarissa" will be shown. Miss Hazel Dawn, whose unusual screen successes in "One of our Girls" and "Noble," attracted so much attention, is featured. The photoplay is founded on the story of Ronald MacDonald's. Through the influence of a wealthy woman, Stephen Gambier is greatly helped in his political career. Their friendship is misunderstood by the outside world, however, and when the tragedy of the woman's death occurs, circumstances seem to point to a lover's quarrel and Gambier is arrested. Clarissa comes to the rescue. The story is said to be especially strong and there are many dramatic situations.

The Mystic will show a three act feature "A Desert Honeymoon" for the first picture tonight. It is said to be a thrilling drama. The other picture of tonight's program is a two act feature "Avenging Bill." Monday night the feature picture "The Red Virgin" will be shown in which Helen Eddy is featured.

United States Navy Would be Helpless Former Secretary of Navy Meyer Declares.

DANIELS IS INCOMPETENT

Public Has Not Yet Realized Deploable Condition of Our Navy, he Asserts.

(By United Press.)

New York, March 4.—"If war should be declared tomorrow morning our navy under Josephus Daniels would be absolutely impotent to check the invasion of our coast," declared Former Secretary of the Navy George Von L. Meyer, here today.

"Congress is talking war," said Meyer. "Thanks to the incompetence of Mr. Daniels war tomorrow with any of the four European nations would find the way open to the enemy."

"The public has not yet realized the deplorable condition of our navy. Demoralization already has attacked the personnel because military efficiency has not been Daniels' goal."

Meyer said the navy has no tested war plans or tested mobilization plans, no general staff, has insufficient ammunition, enlisted men and officers and no enlisted reserve.

"Instead of upbuilding the efficiency of the navy," he said, "Daniels' hobby has been rather to teach naval fighters reading, 'ritin' and rithmetic."

Meyer called for the immediate authorization of a general staff and a national council of defense by congress, an increased naval enlistment of 50,000 men and the passing of an immediate act to build four battle cruisers at a speed of not less than 30 knots.

A CHANGE OF TACTICS.

How It Worked in the Case of a Discouraged Salesman.

The following method of gaining assurance is told in the American Magazine. It is the experience of a salesman who could not sell his goods because he allowed himself to be discouraged at initial attempts. It has wide application everywhere:

"I am a commercial traveler who conquered the habit of despondency. Every one who sells goods knows how fierce is the competition. When I took this job six years ago it seemed absolutely overwhelming. I didn't sell anything to speak of and made up my mind that I couldn't, though I kept on making the round of the groceries. There seemed to be a thousand salesmen just ahead of me. I grew very bitter at the thousand and everybody else. Whenever I entered a store it was with the firm conviction that I should not get an order. I looked dull eyed at the merchant and said gloomily:

"Anything in my line?" at the same time reaching for the doorknob. They didn't try to detain me.

"One day in conversation with an old drummer, a shrewd veteran of the road, I opened my heart with a savage complaint about the thousand salesmen, my advance guard. He pulled his cigar a moment, his eyes twinkled and he slapped me on the shoulder.

"I know," he said. "I had 'em ahead of me once. They raised Cain with me until I chased 'em to the rear. Take my advice, boy, and get up to the head of the procession and let the other fellows do the worrying."

"I thought it over, and it dawned on me that it was a question of viewpoint. I had formed a habit of picturing myself at the tail of the line, though in reality we were going in a circle and my position was as good as any. Then I changed my tactics and formed a new habit—the habit of thinking of myself as the leader, the very first man in the territory. Just as an experiment I went out the next day believing that I should get orders. I pulled my order book and pencil the moment I entered a store and began to name certain goods.

"Sugar!" I cried, looking the grocer expectantly in the eye, as much as to say that I could see the empty barrel behind his counter. And the barrel was empty! It worked so well in the first store that I tried more vigorously in the next, and the merchant came down freely. It was almost uncanny the way I guessed the items he needed. I went out on the sidewalk and laughed aloud. And I actually sold more goods that day than I had sold before in three weeks.

"Well, the firm raised my salary instead of firing me, as they had planned to do, and I still insist that I am the first man over the route. I tell you, right habits of thought are worth money—sometimes a fortune."

Spirit of the Home.

I never realized before how rare indeed is the real home—the temple reared to house a family life, with its altar dedicated to parenthood. I saw that it is not enough to have furniture "good," to have colors "safe," not enough to show a pretty, well appointed house to the world. A real home must be a setting for a living, loving, sorrowing and conquering man and woman. It is not enough to study textures, plans and building materials. It is just the old story of the letter and the spirit. The creative spirit can make any home beautiful, but the most letter perfect house is a dead shell unless it houses loving, growing life.—Emily Newell Blair in Countrywide Magazine.

There was in one part of the theater where in bygone days smoking was permitted the footmen's gallery, where servants in attendance on masters visiting the theater were admitted free. A Real Enthusiast

The Vincennes Morning Commercial, of which Thomas H. Adams is the proprietor, devotes three columns to replying to the yellow bound of Indiana journalism, the Evansville Journal News, which, wolf-like, hides itself under the lamb-like guise of "an independent newspaper." Several copies of the Journal-News containing the false, libelous and malignant attacks on James E. Watson have been received here. The Morning Commercial trims the sails of the Evansville montebank in fine style.

The Commercial accuses the greedy gang of politicians in Marion county of being responsible for the attack on Watson for the reason they are jealous of his popularity and his ability. The Commercial makes the assertion that "Watson will carry the entire lower counties by a vote of at least two to one, the Journal-News of Evansville notwithstanding."

The Vincennes newspaper calls attention to the fact that Watson is one kind of a villain in Fort Wayne and another in Evansville, according to his malicious enemies. It recalls that anonymous circulars were spread out from Fort Wayne denouncing Watson as a tool and candidate of the Taggart-Fairbanks Democratic machine and that the Journal-News is very sure that Watson is an infamous character because the manufacturers boosted him in 1908 for governor.

"Watson represents the best interests of the state and has always done so," continues the Commercial. "He is the friend of the manufacturer, because he is the chief tariff apostle of this country, and that is just what the business man and laboring man wants, a fair, square representative who will work to protect the interest of these classes."

"Evansville is full of manufacturing establishments and every one of them is depending right now on the election of an able representative from Indiana to the senate for their very business life depends upon the repeal of the Underwood law. Jim Watson is just the man to do it and they are going to vote for him, and elect him, and he ought to carry Vanderburg county by a vote of five to one. Every manufacturer in Indiana ought to call his laboring men together, tell them the truth and expose the scandal-monging, yellow-spined journalism."

"It seems that the Marion county political machine could have made its campaign for Harry New at least fair and respectable, but the average Marion county politician goes after what he is greedy for regardless of the consequences, so they commenced at one end of the state, up at Ft. Wayne, declaring that Jim Watson, Harry New's opponent, was in league with the liquor interests at Ft. Wayne. Then at the other end of the state, at Evansville they accused Watson with being the direct tool of the plutocratic interests, and an enemy of labor. The voter will have to take his choice, believe these lies, or else repudiate them entirely for what they are, baseless, worthless fabrications for campaign purposes."

"The common cheap fake that has been spread about the state ever since James E. Watson ran for governor in 1908 is that Watson is opposed to labor, and unfriendly to it. The charge is so weak and absurd that none will be influenced by it. "In 1908 Watson lost Indiana by

We are authorized to announce the name of Charles C. Brown as a candidate for Sheriff on the Democratic ticket, subject to the decision of the primary election, March 7, 1916.

I will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress before the Primary, March 7th, and as the duties of my office and attention to important measures before Congress will prevent my returning to my District, I take this means to ask the voters for their support.

FINLY H. GRAY.

15,000 and Taft won by 15,000. It was not the labor vote that did it. Watson was traded off by Frank Hanly on the liquor question in 1908, and labor had nothing to do with it. The Republican platform on county option defeated the governor and labor did not. ***

"They (the Marion county politicians) insulted Watson in 1912 and would not let him make speeches in the state. In 1914 Goodrich and New and the state committee refused to assign Watson to any meetings until absolutely forced to do so. Why? Because they feared that the Republican state machine, upon which they had fattened so many years, would slip from their grasp. In spite of it, they admit that Watson was the greatest and best campaigner in the country and urged him to go to other states and spread the Republican gospel, while they (Goodrich and New) were scuttling the Republican ship at home. They scuttled it in 1912 in Marion county, as is well known."

"Watson through all that trouble stood grim and alone. In 1912 he stood as a central figure as floor leader in the national convention, that held the party together, and in a manner that was matchless in its courtesy to the Roosevelt wing, conducted the convention so fairly and so honestly that Gov. Hadley of Missouri on the other side, thanked him warmly and with great enthusiasm."

"Watson was the first speaker out that summer, and made his first ringing speech in Noblesville in August. While Harry New, Jim Goodrich and other leaders all ran to the woods, and did not appear from under cover until October. Oh, we remember those days of political hell well enough. ***

"We hope the Evansville, Vincennes and Indianapolis businessmen will defend themselves by seeing that Watson gets real active support of the right kind so that the Republican party can show that it is the party of the full pocketbook and the full dinner pail, opposed to the empty pocketbook and the empty dinnerpail."

"In conclusion, the hired labor agitators are mis-representing the case, the Mine Workers Journal absolutely misrepresents Watson in every detail of its fake article on his work. Watson never opposed any bill for the good of the workingmen, was always their friend, and supporter, and when employed by the manufacturers in the past years has only been employed to represent them on questions of the tariff laws that affected the manufacturing business. We challenge and defy contradiction in every particular. This war on Watson is meant to defeat and overpower labor and not to support or help it."

The Logical Candidate

The Logical Candidate for Joint Senator is ORA MYERS

the former Mayor of Greenfield, who was our candidate in 1914, who made the race in the face of certain defeat and carried the district ahead of the STATE TICKET.

He is a man of sterling worth and ability and has the backbone and grit to make good in the State Senate.

The Republicans of Rush County should vote for him solidly. Decatur has a candidate, but at the present time they have representation in the senate and will have for over two years. Decatur has a candidate for Appellate court.

Rush County has a candidate for United States Senator. ORA MYERS is the only candidate which Hancock County has for State office.

You should vote for him from the logical, geographical and political standpoint.

FIVE AMERICANS KILLED IN FRANCE

Kelly of the Foreign Legion Sought Honors on Battlefield.

LAST SEEN IN FOE'S TRENCH

Dispatch From French War Office Says He Is Honorably Missing—Companions Also Praised For Their Bravery on Many Occasions Since They Enlisted With the Allies.

Kelly of the Foreign legion is dead. "Russell Kelly, 45 Broadway, New York, U. S. A.," is the way his name went into the rolls of his regiment in France, but "Kelly of the Foreign legion" is the way it will be written in the roll of heroes when the list is handed down to posterity in the story of the European war.

Kelly grinned and said he would cheat the Germans when he was told that the order had gone out to execute every member of the Foreign legion captured in battle. And he did cheat them. He escaped the ignominious death threatened at the hands of a firing squad to find a more glorious one on the field of battle.

Where Kelly of the Foreign legion met death and how only those who were with him on his final charge can tell. But his father, James E. Kelly, possesses a treasured message from the French war office that he points to as sufficient evidence that his boy died as an American should.

"Your son is honorably missing. Was seen in German trench with bullet in shoulder," the message reads.

The meager dispatch contains additional facts that will give little satisfaction to the Americans whose eyes have scanned the cables for news of other Americans in the legion. It tells of the death of Kelly's four American associates, Hermon Edwin Hall of Chicago, John Earle Pike of Wooster, O., and Kenneth Weeks and Henry Farnsworth of Boston.

Reported Dead Once Before.

The names first appeared among the casualties at Givenchy, but later it was reported that Kelly and possibly the other four had recovered and again had taken their places in the trenches. The later report, however, may mean that this was an error or that they fell together in a later encounter.

Kelly, who had been in the lines of the allies "somewhere in France" for several months, was reported missing last summer. James Kelly, on learning of the disappearance of his adventurous son, started the machinery of the state department at Washington on a search for him in German prisons. Simultaneous with the original report came the statement that Germany had ordered all members of the Foreign legion shot wherever they might be captured. The technical offense of the members of the legion was that they were not citizens of the country for which they were fighting.

"But Russell will beat that all right," confidently asserted the father. "When I first learned of the difficulties that the legionnaires were likely to get into I wrote him explicit directions not to claim American citizenship if taken prisoner. All I told him to do was to claim the right of communicating with Ambassador Gerard. His answer to my letter was characteristic. It was, 'Will follow your instructions in case of capture.'"

However, news reached Mr. Russell that there was no record of the imprisonment of his son in a German camp. The news was crushing. It had seemed possible that he might have concealed his identity for weeks, but seven months—the father's almost unlimited fund of hope was lost.

Kelly wrote to his father that he was seeing better work than Ty Cobb ever had seen in hitting the grit. The twenty-two-year-old boy cheerfully announced that he was out for glory. And now Kelly of the Foreign legion has reached the other end of the path that leads to glory.

Kenneth Weeks of Cambridge, Mass., whose death in France is reported, was twenty-six years old and had written five volumes of short stories, besides several plays. He went to Paris five years ago to study at the Beaux Arts.

Devoted to France, he enlisted at the outbreak of the war and spent the first winter in the trenches. He was chosen as bomb thrower for his squad and took in the offensive of May 4. He was mentioned in despatches for bravery. He was regarded as a writer of much promise.

Henry W. Farnsworth, a Harvard graduate and a member of an old Boston family, was twenty-five years old and had been out of college but a few years. When the war started he had just begun work in the office of his father. Before relatives could object he had packed his trunk and was on the way to Europe.

Farnsworth wanted to be right in the midst of the fighting and refused to become a war correspondent, preferring to join the Foreign legion. His company, according to letters he wrote home, was in many desperate engagements in northern France.

Jail Vacant For Thirty Years.

Oneida, Kan., has had a jail for thirty years, but during that time only one person ever inhabited it. A tramp was once given a night's lodging in it. The jail is being used for housing fire fighting apparatus.

We Need a Strong Campaigner

The test of a candidate is, can he get the votes? In 1914 Hugh Th. Miller, candidate for United States Senator, received 14,795 votes in the District. Lynch received 14,880 votes. LYNCH RECEIVED MORE VOTES THAN THE HEAD OF THE TICKET.

In 1912 Gray's plurality in the District was 8,745; in 1914, Gray's plurality was only 3,491. LYNCH REDUCED GRAY'S PLURALITY 5,254.

What a man can do in the future is to be judged by what he has done in the past. If Lynch gets these results with a divided party he can redeem the Old Bunt District with a united party.

GIVE HIM ANOTHER CHANCE AND SEE

Republican success demands a hard, vigorous speaking campaign. The candidate must be a man in the vigor of middle-aged manhood. If Lynch is nominated there will be no watchful waiting in this campaign.

WE NEED A STRONG CAMPAIGNER

CANDIDATE FOR CLERK Of the Circuit Court.

Subject to the Decision of the Republican Primaries March 7, 1916.

To the Republicans of Rush County:

As it is nearly impossible to see each one individually, we are authorized to take the method of placing his name before the voters for their consideration.

WHO IS HE?

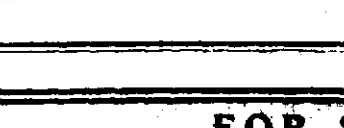

He is a farmer, 46 years old, born and always lived on the farm where he now resides and received his education in the township and city schools. He makes no claim to be entitled to the office any more than any other Republican that has always voted and worked for the party.

He does not say he needs the office to make a living as he is making a very good living where he is, but if nominated and elected he does not promise to give the salary away as he never saw any one yet who could not use another dollar or two.

He has been a Republican all his life; his father has been a Republican since the birth of the party; and his grandfather was a Whig before he was a Republican. None of them have ever held a county office or even asked for one.

If nominated and elected, he promises to serve the people to the best of his ability.

RICHMOND HIGH PROVES TOO FAST

Win Closing High School Basketball Game on Home Floor Friday Night by Score of 35 to 25.

BEST SEEN HERE THIS YEAR

Quintets Evenly Matched in First Half, But in Second Visitors Hit Their Stride.

The Richmond high school team proved too fast for Rushville and the locals went down in defeat by a score of 35 to 25. The score made last night just about represents the superiority of the Richmond team over Rushville.

The attack of the Richmond team surpassed anything seen on the local floor this year and after seeing the game it was easy to understand how the team has won 16 out of 20

YOU CAN INCREASE WEIGHT

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 20 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Tonoline with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Tonoline—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from 5 to 10 pounds in the first two weeks by following this simple direction, and best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Tonoline does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and starch of what you have eaten into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—repairs it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Tonoline stops the waste and does it quickly and make the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds more of healthy flesh. Tonoline is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. For sale by Hargrove & Mullin.

games played this season. The victory of the Richmond team was no fluke, especially in the first half.

The two teams were evenly matched in the first half, but Richmond found itself in the final period. The basket shooting of the Quakers was deadly and the goals in the final half were made from all angles. The basket shooting was the best ever displayed on the home floor, and early in the last half it was evident that the only question was as to the size of the score.

Rushville was the first to score, when Stoops counted a field goal after the first minute of play. The locals, inspired by this, made two more baskets in rapid order and at one time the score stood 8 to 4 in favor of Rushville. Towards the close of the half, Brown and Porter, the Richmond forwards, got the basket located and then Richmond gradually pulled away. The half ended 15 to 12 in favor of Richmond.

The locals were slow in getting a start in the last half and Richmond had a lead of ten points before Rushville made a point. This naturally took some of the fight out of Rushville, but the team fought hard against odds and the ten point margin was as much as could be expected. The score and summary:

Richmond (35)	Rushville (25)
Field goals—Brown, 6; Porter, 5; Parker, 4; Meranda, 1; Stoops, 4; Caron, 3; Martin, 4; Frazier, 1.	Field goals—Brown, 6; Porter, 5; Parker, 4; Meranda, 1; Stoops, 4; Caron, 3; Martin, 4; Frazier, 1.

POSTAL BUSINESS 2 BILLIONS.

Year's Shortage $11,300,000—Service Doubles in Twelve Years.

Charles A. Kram, auditor for the postoffice department, in his annual report just made public, discloses that the postal service has doubled in the last twelve years and that during the fiscal year just closed the audited transactions approximated $2,000,000,000. The postal revenues were $287,248,165; expenditures, $298,546,026; domestic money orders issued $965,249,088; money orders issued in foreign countries payable in the United States, $61,662,121; domestic money orders paid, $671,172,683, and United States money orders paid abroad, $6,356,485, making an aggregate of $1,980,234,568.

WILL MADE IN ASYLUM GOOD.

Court Sustains One of Man Confined as Insane.

The will of Levi R. Reed, a shoe-string manufacturer of Boston, drawn while he was confined in an insane asylum, was sustained in the superior court. The Norfolk county probate court had refused to allow the will on the ground that Reed's commitment to the Taunton Insane asylum proved him to be of unsound mind. The instrument disposed of property valued at about $20,000.

CHAPLIN COMEDIES GENERALLY ARE HIS OWN IDEAS DEVELOPED

They Are Not Dashed Off as They Appear on the Screen, But Are the Fruits of Hours of Careful and Painstaking Work.

Some of the attention that came to Chaplin with his fame was enjoyable. Thousands of people speak to Chaplin on the street without knowing him. They are always answered courteously. Not long ago, I saw two old people stop and stare and begin to nudge each other in great excitement. Charlie Chaplin was coming down the street. When he came near, the old man gathered his courage and said: "Hello, Charlie Chaplin." Chaplin lifted his hat in the odd way that he does on the screen and said: "Howdydo!" and passed on. The old people were tickled to death.

The one thing that got the comedian's goat was speaking at banquets. Just once it is recorded that he was prevailed upon and human agony can have no fuller expression than this quivering actor waiting to speak his piece.

The culmination of his fame came probably with the offer of a New York theatrical man to give him $25,000 for an engagement of two weeks—an offer which the Essanay company is supposed to have met to induce him to stay away from the stage.

About Those Darling Pictures.

You often hear wise moving-picture fans tell how Charlie Chaplin produces a picture by just dashing out anything that comes into his head. Yes, indeed! Chaplin dashes through a scenario just about the way a watchmaker dashes through the work of repairing a repeater. All these uproariously funny Chaplin farces have been made slowly and painfully.

Chaplin never works from a regularly "written out" scenario. He gets a general idea, then slowly patches it together after getting the actors in front of the camera. Most of the scenarios are his own stuff. He says he thinks of them as he walks along the street, or in cafes, or any old where. Most of the time, Chaplin seems abstracted and as far away as in a dream. This is because he is usually manufacturing some moving-picture story.

He says he got one of the best bunches he ever had while eating lunch. It struck him so suddenly that he almost went out without paying the check.

The scenario of "His Trysting Place" came from an old comic song that Chaplin's father sang in vaudeville years ago. "Wait for a Hunch."

Once he has possession of the bunch, Chaplin begins directing the piece. His methods in this are as eccentric as are all his other ways.

Chaplin plants himself in a chair just out of range of the camera. As he always acts in the piece he is directing, he always wears his stage costume. He pulls the dinky little derby down over his eyes, spraddles his big shoes out in front of him and the actors begin.

Chaplin lets them do their comedy just as they please as long as they please him—which is about five seconds, usually. He sits and watches them with an expression which seems to say: "Good Lord, and these guys are getting money for doing this!" Then when he can't stand it any longer he , up and shows them how to do it.

He very rarely tells them what to do; he shows them. The result is that every part in every Charlie Chaplin piece is acted by Charlie Chaplin himself. As he goes along, he makes almost innumerable changes and corrections. As he practically writes his scenarios after the acting has begun, it is intensely nervous work. It is as hard to get a chance to see him at work as it is to get into a lodge meeting.

Makes Two Kids Happy.

But to show you the instinctive kindness of the man, the other day two little street boys were found pecking in under the fence. One of the supers was going to drive them away, but Charlie called them in. There happened to be a lull in the proceedings, so he pretended to direct them in a comedy. To their delight, he put them through a little impromptu scenario. And it was noted that he was just as careful in directing their stuff as his own. The general public he refused to admit to the studio, thereby differing from some directors, who seem happiest when a crowd is looking on.

A very important and rather arduous part of picture work is selecting the "locations." In most companies this is the job of the assistant directors. Chaplin, however, does all his own searching for locations. However, it must be said that most of his locations are simple and easy to find.

In moving-picture work, a great deal of time is wasted while the camera men are fixing the light shields, and other necessary contrivances. During this time, the actors are left to their own devices. Chaplin, in fooling around during these periods and unconsciously pulls some of his funniest comedy. While he was still with Keystone, they went down to the Ince ranch to produce that prehistoric film in which a great make pulled "Ambrose" up a cliff. They had a whole basketful of snakes down on the beach. While they were waiting to begin, Chaplin started to juggle with the snakes in imitation of a circus snake charmer. It was so funny that it nearly broke up the business of the numerous Ince companies for the day.

Great Film Waster.

Chaplin, like many of the big directors, is a great waster of film. He never leaves a situation until he is thoroughly satisfied with it and he is hard to satisfy. He is very much given to re-takes, which is the most expensive habit in the movies.

It is plain to the careful observer that Chaplin is working toward something entirely new in pictures. In a general way, his idea is that comedy should be more subtle and have more real story, although the horse-play antics he indulges in make that idea hardly credible.

He made the greatest advance in this direction in "The Tramp." In this, there was not only a real story, but a touch of real pathos which gave Chaplin a chance for the greatest "finish" that has ever been shown in any movie comedy. I think everyone who saw it will agree with me on that point.

The Sewing Machine.

Elias Howe, whose sewing machine was the first to come into popular favor, was not, it seems, the originator of the idea, as an Englishman had made drawings of such a machine in 1790, and another was in operation in Paris as early as 1830.—Argonaut.

Monday

Tri Kappa, with Mrs. Harry Osborne at 717 North Willow street, in the afternoon.

Monday Circle, with Mrs. P. T. Allen at 541 North Perkins street, in the afternoon.

Elite Club, with Mrs. Sarah Giffin at 623 North Morgan street, in the afternoon.

A party composed of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kelso, Mrs. Leona Cox, and Miss Elba Gable attended the Auto Show in Indianapolis today.

Mahoning Council had the regular degree work at the Red Men's hall last evening, with a good attendance.

The Misses Dorothy Frazee, Janette Dean and Jean Sparks saw "The Birth of a Nation," in Indianapolis today, after which Janette Dean went to Franklin to spend the week-end with relatives.

Miss Estelle Jones, who is a charter member of the Departmental Club in Indianapolis, has been attending the series of parties being given by that club this week. Tuesday she was among the guests at the luncheon at the Claypool and today the same company of ladies will enjoy a card party at the Propyleum. Miss Jones went to Indianapolis this morning to be among the guests this afternoon.

SURPRISE PARTY.
Miss Elsie Scott of Raleigh celebrated her birthday yesterday in a way most surprising to her, for in the evening twenty-five of her friends burst in upon her and together they spent a mirthful evening in dancing and playing various games. Carrying out the careful plans for the affair, the guests brought with them delicious refreshments which were served near the close of the pleasant party.

DELIGHTFUL AFTERNOON.
With Mrs. Charles Combs, who was formerly of this city, the members of the Glenwood Embroidery Club had a delightful meeting yesterday afternoon. In her lovely home the twelve guests spent a merry afternoon as they engaged in interesting discourse over their crocheting. Soon work was forgotten, however, with the service of a daintily prepared luncheon, consisting of a delicious salad course.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.
Glen Carr of Milroy has the unusual distinction of having his birthday on February 29th. Last Tuesday, in celebrating his sixth birthday, when, incidentally, he was twenty-four years of age, his wife planned a surprise on him. About twenty friends and relatives gathered at the home rather stealthily and upon his arrival, the merry crowd which had assembled, as well as the sumptuous dinner which had been planned in his honor, was a complete surprise to him. The afternoon was spent in an equally joyous manner in celebration of the event.

A small and impromptu theatre party was given yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Madeline Laidley of Madison, who is the charming guest of the Misses Edith and Emma Wilk of this city, and has visited here frequently.

HONORING TEAM
Included in the royal reception given the members of the Richmond basketball team while here yesterday, was an informal party at the home of Miss Leota Mull last evening. Following the game, the jolly crowd enjoyed Miss Mull's hospitality and spent a merry evening together dancing and participating in several informal games. Light refreshments were served as the evening drew near a close. The guests at this pleasant party were the Misses Helen Hale, Ruth Higgins, Gertrude Wilkinson, Eva Young and Leota Mull and Roland Dollins, Russell Parks, Harold Brown, Cyril Pitts, and John Meranda.

DINNER PARTY
The birthday of Mrs. Lillian Osborne of West First street was pleasantly celebrated last evening when she entertained an agreeable company of friends who include the young ladies who are taking a course in a correspondence school. One of the gifts which Mrs. Osborne received was a lovely bouquet of carnations which added greatly to the decorative scheme used. A prettily appointed dinner was served followed by an enjoyable evening together. In this group of students were the Misses Lillian Gilson, Marie Fodder, Elmoa Doll and Sarah Whiteside. One of the professors from Indianapolis, S. H. Bemenderfer, was also present.

WITH MRS. GREEN.
A dainty color combination of pink and white gave the home of Mrs. Lowell M. Green an unusually attractive and festive appearance this afternoon when she entertained the members of the Embroidery Club. Japanese peach blossoms and pink roses were the predominating flowers that were so profusely scattered through the rooms. In this airy and springlike setting, the winter day was forgotten by the amiable group of ladies that spent a delightful afternoon together. About five o'clock a tempting salad course was served in a dainty style. In connection with the luncheon clever St. Patrick's favors of pipes and shamrocks were given the guests. Among the thirty guests was Mrs. Darwin Medaris, the interesting house guest of Mrs. Green who will remain over the week-end.

As a result of the exchange given by the ladies of the Christian church of Sexton, over sixteen dollars were cleared for use in the church.

The boys of Mrs. F. G. Hackleman's Sunday school class of the M. E. church cleared about eight dollars today for the Easter offering by selling home-made egg-kisses and doughnuts.

The K. of C. initiation and entertainment to be given in Muncie this evening will be attended by the Misses Theresa and Helen Reardon and Ed Mullins, Leo King and Leo Mullins of this city.

Mrs. Joe Buschmohle entertained a few friends at tea yesterday afternoon, when her guests enjoyed a delightful time. After several games of cards, tea was served and the ladies had a merry chat over their tea cups.

T. O. G. DINNER

The semi-monthly meetings of the T. O. G. Club have grown to be especially charming gatherings in the form of dinner parties for the merry crowd of girls that form this organization. This afternoon the pleasing hostess was Miss Lois Reeves who furnished an entertaining afternoon for her guests. Music and chatting amused the guests until they were invited into the dining room where the spring flowers, the coming season was cheerfully anticipated. A fragrant bouquet of hyacinths was in the center of the table.

The two course dinner was both bountiful and dainty. It was greatly enjoyed by the jolly group of girls that surrounded the table. They were the Misses Dorothy Mulno, Catherine Wooden, Kathryn Giffin, Esther Anderson, Helen Frazee, Margaret Ball, Katherine Wyatt, and Dorothy Sparks.

The Tragedy

When Brother Tommy shines his shoes with very special care And stands before the glass to choose the tie that he shall wear, When he discards the little caps that perch above one ear And says that all the other chaps are wearing hats this year, When he invests in scarfpins made of imitation pearl His mother's mortally afraid that Tommy's got a girl.

No more he sneers at light gray spats or coats with swallowtails, Nor calls the fellows sissycats that clean their finger nails, He doesn't think it's a wasting time to brush their tousled locks, He doesn't hold that it's a crime for boys to wear silk socks, And, viewing with extreme alarm his newborn fear of dirt, His mother seeks the magic charms and finds it—it's a skirt.

And though she bravely makes believe it brings her happiness, That she no longer has to grieve because he hates to dress, And though she says that she is glad that he's so trim and neat—Far more, indeed, than in his dad—when he goes on the street, Her eyes grow dim, for well she knows that nothing can restore Her little scudgy boy to her—the way he was before. —James J. Montague in New York American.

216,274 REACH PORT IN 1915.

American Line Holds Palm For Bringing Largest Number.
According to the report issued the other day by W. C. Moore, the landing agent at Ellis Island, the New York Immigration station, the total number of passengers of all classes arriving at the port of New York during 1915 on 1,435 trips was 216,274. Of the total there were 59,797 first cabin, 61,010 second and 95,467 third class passengers.

The greatest number was brought to New York by the American line steamers in fifty trips, which was 23,401 passengers from Liverpool.

Biggest Gun Used in 1866.
Some of the guns used in 1862 at the bombardment of Alexandria, Egypt, were of sixteen inch bore, an inch larger than the biggest British naval cannon of today, while four years later that navy had guns of 16.25 inches caliber.

JUDGE DEFENDS BROTHER FINLY

said was a part of Finly's program. It was so awful, he said, that he would not read it. However, the paper was simply a statement of facts in Wayne county as regarded the agitation against Finly. It showed that Mr. Harper, who was an applicant for the postoffice at Cambridge City, was against Finly and that the same was true of R. O. Allen of Richmond, who was an applicant for the postoffice there.

"Other reflections made by Mr. Lontz in that speech were that Finly had sent out public documents to his constituents. On that question for which he was attacked, he established a reform. Instead of indiscriminately distributing public documents, he asks constituents to write for them. Finly was also attacked because he had written letter questioning constituents on military questions, which were not an issue in the last campaign. Lontz claims to be a business man and holds up Finly as a cheap, gum-shoe politician. Finly was the first Democratic congressman from this district in years, was accused of being such by opposing party men, but for Lontz, a Democratic candidate seeking the nomination, to do such a thing, it is indeed strange."

Judge Gray replied to a letter he said is being sent throughout the district what declares he (Judge Gray) went to Cambridge City and organized a Gray club of ten members. Judge Gray declared he never solicited a member, never attended a meeting of the club, but that such a club existed and that it had 257 charter members, with more joining all the time.

Judge Gray devoted the early part of his speech to a review of the early history of the Republican party—discussing the tariff—and defended his brother Finly's action and votes in congress.

FANS WONDER ABOUT PHILLIES

Pat Moran and His Champions Start Training Season Confident of Winning Again.

MANY YOUNGSTERS IN LINE

Now Has Thirteen Twirlers and Other Positions Will be Equally as Hard to Fill.

(By United Press.)

Philadelphia, March 4.—Full of hope for the 1916 campaign though the fans are somewhat doubtful—Pat Moran and his Champion Phillies today attuned their ears to the flap-flap of the pennant at Phillies' Park masthead as they headed for Spring training. It is their first flag in so many years that they count 'em by decades and the Clan Moran enters the strife determined to repeat the pennant-winning performance of Grover Alexander and his noble cohorts.

Moran suffered reverses in the Snow-Season maneuvers. He wanted to pluck Rousch and Gedeon out of the Federal League grab bag. He didn't get them and the soft-spoken Gael had to revise his plans in mid-stream. However, the pennant-winners are practically intact and important new faces loom in the Phillies' family album. The strengthening of other teams and the Phils' fizzle in the World's Series are the causes of doubt among the fans.

One of Moran's hopes is to develop something of stellar luminosity from out the array of recruits and second-string men on hand. This he believes can be accomplished soon after the regular season gets under way, when the youngsters have had the benefit of a training trip and a few tangles in the big time.

Who will fill the outfield and infield positions when the season opens is problematical. Expected shakeups probably will mark the exit of more than one old timer. This already has been evidenced by the release of Beals Becker, veteran outfielder. This release showed that Moran has great confidence that Good or Devore will prove a valuable addition to the champions. It is certain Moran will carry a left-handed hitting outfielder and with Becker gone there is room for Good or Devore.

Cravath and Paskert, according to the dopsters, will have to do tall hustling to prevent the youngsters from crowding them out of the race. While both play consistent ball they are not expected to improve a great deal. Cravath in particular although an asset as a hitter, last year showed signs that his legs were giving him trouble.

Dave Shean, who was secured from Boston, is another recruit expected to strengthen weak spots. It is not unlikely that Bert Niehoff of last year's championship infield, will be out of the lineup. Shean does good work in keystone territory and the dopsters will not be surprised to see him gallivanting around second base.

The back-stop staff is not expected to be materially changed unless Killifer's bum arm goes entirely bad. Killifer is still in his prime and it is believed the expert attention given the injured member will see him pegging to second with his same old accuracy. Eddie Burns and Jack Adams also are expected to work again behind the plate.

Moran has thirteen twirlers to choose from. His recent purchase of Chief Bender, who played with the Baltimore Federals last season, gave Moran good timber for his elimination trials. Whether Bender can beat out six second-string pitchers depends on whether he can show some of the form he demonstrated five years ago. It is not believed Moran will carry more than seven mound men.

Alexander the Great again will be the moving spirit of the Phillies. During the winter he faithfully watched his condition and his arm is reported better than last year. With Chalmers, Mayer and Rixey steadily improving and Demaree,

Germany's "Spring Drive"

WHAT WILL IT COUNT FOR?

With the results of the German efforts still uncertain, the correspondents are speculating over their meaning and the motives behind them.

Does Germany expect to win a decision in the West, to force France to make peace by taking Verdun, breaking through to the French line and again moving on Paris? Or, is she merely fortifying herself against an expected Allied drive, acting on the principle that the best defense is an attack? Or, is she merely after local gains, or trying to regain the ground lost last fall? Or, as some French writers hint, has military strategy been subordinated to political or dynastic considerations?

In THE LITERARY DIGEST for March 4th, the views of the American press, and war correspondents are incorporated in a comprehensive article which also includes maps, showing the Allies' losses.

He Who Hears But One Bell Hears But One Sound

Independently thinking Americans are applying this Belgian proverb to their own reading. The publication which strikes the same note incessantly, which defends one side in right or in wrong, which presents arguments always one-sided, naturally is sounding but one bell. That's one reason why.

so many people are reading THE LITERARY DIGEST. This non-partizan weekly picks the keynote of the contentions of all sides and builds up a harmony of the truth that makes its readers appreciate the value of every version of the news. Get the news-chimes in The Digest.

OBITUARY

William W. Wolfe, an ex-soldier of the Civil War, was born in Rushville, Ind., Oct. 26th, 1845, died at the National Military Home, Marion, Ind., Thursday March 2, 1916.

At the early age of 16 he enlisted with his father, Lieut. Col. Joel Wolfe, in the first 16th Indiana Regiment, the regiment originally commanded by General P. A. Hackelman, of this city, and served with that regiment as its drummer-boy. Later, and after the death of his father who was killed in battle, he reenlisted in the 123d Indiana Regiment and served with that organization until the close of the war.

He was buried in East Hill Cemetery in the family lot, Saturday March 4, 1916. 306t1

EXPECTS REDS TO FINISH GOOD

Herzog Has Strengthened Team And Believes He Will Be In The Race This Year

SIX FORMER FED LEAGUERS

Has Fairly Good Pitching Staff And

His Infield Is All Set—One

Outfielder Certain

(By United Press.)

Cincinnati, O., March 4.—Buck Herzog's Reds, re-inforced by six former Federal leaguers and a few recruits from the minors, will start for their new training camp at Shreveport, La., tomorrow, confident they are going to crawl out of the last division hole this season.

This will be Buck's third season as skipper of the Red Ship. He ran into eighth place in 1914 and seventh position last year. Both seasons, however, he did a lot of experimenting. He says he spent those two years putting his machine together and that this year he believes it will perform the way he wants it to.

There aren't many jobs open to the new Reds. However, should any of them display unexpected class Buck will make room for them. Tom Clark and Ivy Wingo, mainstays behind the bat last year, remain on the job with Emil Hahn, a Federal league product, added as third catcher.

Fred Mollwitz again will hold down first with Herzog at short and Heinie Groh at third. Bill Rodgers, who wound up last season at second will defend his position against Bill Louden and Jimmy Esmond, purchased from the Feds. Frank Emmer, an Ohio State league recruit, doesn't seem heavy enough for a big league job at present.

Tom Griffith is the only old outfielder sure of his job. He'll play right with George Anderson, late of the Buffalo Feds. Earl Neale, champion batsman of the Central league; John Beall, Kenneth Williams and Wade Killifer, Reds of 1915, are scrapping it out for the other berths.

Ten pitchers, three of them southpaws, are booked for the Dixieland frolic. Al Schulz, once a Yankee was bought from the Feds; Clarence Mitchell, recently of Denver and Frank Caporal, a New York State league product, are the southpaws. Schulz and Mitchell appear to be fixtures.

Duke, Toney McKenery and Schneider, right handers left over from last year, all satisfied Herzog last season that they are of big league calibre. Mosely, who pitched good ball for the Boston Red Sox before jumping to the Feds, is a welcome addition to the staff. Dougan and Dowd are the other right handers. Buck will have in camp. Both come well recommended.

The general verdict of baseball men last fall was that Herzog's team was better than its finish indicated. Injuries played with his team at various stages of the race. Buck believes he'll have no trouble finishing in the first division this year if his players only can escape more than an ordinary amount of sickness and mishaps.

Special Evangelistic Services in this church each evening during the week at 7:30 o'clock, except Saturday, with preaching by pastor and music led by chorus choir under the direction of the Clarence E. Lane, singing evangelist.

Walter Frazee of Louisville, Ky., formerly of this city, will preach at the Main Street Christian church Sunday morning at 10:30 on the subject, "Religious Instruction and Public Education." The pastor, the Rev. C. M. Yocum, will preach at night. Bible school at 9:15 a. m.

WARNS AGAINST SENDING MONEY

Is Needed in This State To Fight Tuberculosis Instead of Sending it Out

MANY SCHEMES ARE A FAKE

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., March 4.—Severance Burrage, president of the Indiana Society for the prevention of tuberculosis, today issued a warning to Hoosiers against sending money out of Indiana. Various associations are canvassing Indiana for out-of-state institutions and it is claim of local people that in some cases most of the money contributed goes to salaries and office expenses.

"Do not send money designed for tuberculosis prevention to other states, as the Indiana problem is large and sixty-two local associations are doing able and increasingly effective work," said Burrage.

Burrage commented on the activities of the Children's National Tuberculosis Society of Chicago which is maintaining canvassers to sell a magazine in Indiana. He said the National Association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis has investigated the Chicago society and found that only about one cent of ten contributed is used in tuberculosis work.

AUTO RACER TO MARRY TONIGHT

Louis Disbrow Will Wed Miss Harriet May Henry—Romance of One Year to End

GIVES UP DRIVING FOR HER

Was Love on First Sight as Far as he Was Concerned But She Was Not Certain

(By United Press.)
Chicago, March 4.—A romance one year old—will culminate this evening in the marriage of Louis Arthur Disbrow, auto racer, and Miss Harriet May Henry.

A year ago Miss Henry was in Los Angeles; so was Louie Disbrow. Louie's mind was very much on the race track. Miss Henry's thoughts were very much away from it. With nothing much else to do Miss Henry accepted an invitation from friends to go to the auto tournament.

Louie, still in his driving clothes, met Miss Henry. It was love at first sight—at least on Louie's part, for the next day he asked Miss Henry to marry him.

But Miss Henry didn't quite know, in fact she thought auto racing too dangerous for the man she would marry.

"I knew that if I didn't stop Louie's racing before we were married, he wouldn't stop until I was wearing widow's weeds and I couldn't bear the thought of that," Miss Henry said today. "Louie's wanting to marry me and the fact that I convinced him he was capable of much bigger and better things than auto racing accounts for his giving up the speed track."

Six weeks ago Louie wired from Cleveland to Miss Henry in Chicago for her to be ready to "carry out your part of the bargain."

"I'm ready," Miss Henry wired back.

Louie caught the next train for Chicago, the day was set, and since, both have been busy getting ready for the wedding.

"It is Louie's untiring devotion to me that won me," Miss Henry said, and almost admitted that if he hadn't given in six weeks ago she would have taken him anyway—racing or no racing.

The marriage ceremony takes place at 6:30 this evening in the English room at the Blackstone hotel. Only a few relatives and intimate friends will attend. They will leave for Cleveland at once where Louie is president of an auto sales company. In August Mr. and Mrs. Disbrow will spend several weeks cruising with friends on the Atlantic coast.

Union Workmen Indorse Candidacy of J. M. Lontz

For Democratic Nomination as Representative in Congress

A committee appointed by the Moulders' Union of Richmond, Ind., has found John M. Lontz, candidate for the Democratic nomination as representative in congress, a man who has always been fair to labor and who can be depended upon to champion its cause. Lontz's labor record was investigated (and by a committee of men not in his employ) because he is one of the largest manufacturers of lawn mowers in the United States.

The results of the committee's investigation are contained in the following report it caused to be published in the Richmond Labor Herald of March 3, 1916:

"To the Editor of the Labor Herald:

"Dear Sir and Brother—We, the undersigned committee of Union Moulders, requested of John M. Lontz, candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress in the Sixth District, to meet with us, which he readily arranged to do, February 27.

Former Congressman Johnson Urges Nomination of Lontz

In a letter addressed to Horace G. Yergin, attorney at law, Newcastle, Ind., former congressman Henry U. Johnson, one of the most brilliant men who ever represented the Sixth district in congress, vigorously indorses the candidacy of John M. Lontz for the Democratic congressional nomination. Mr. Johnson asserts that Mr. Lontz as the Democratic candidate can command the support of many Republicans and former Progressives. His letter to Mr. Yergin follows:

My Dear Yergin:—Have the Democratic friends in Henry county stopped to think carefully on the Democratic nomination for congress?

"Whoever is the Republican nominee, Lontz will poll many more votes against him than Gray can possibly command. In fact, Gray has lost strength in Wayne county very perceptibly. John M. Lontz is a popular man in Wayne county. His candidacy has been very heartily received by our people irrespective of party.

"We had a long talk with Mr. Lontz, and we wish to say, from the statements he made to us, that he is very fair to organized labor.

"The wages he is paying his employes are far better than the average wages paid men in that class of work (manufacture of lawn mowers).

"Therefore, it is up to Organized Labor to be fair to this man who tries to be fair to it.

"What labor is working for is what Lontz is working for.

"Therefore, the committee is very well satisfied with the meeting it had with Lontz in regard to his views on Organized Labor.

Yours in Union,

GILBERT HERR,
R. E. NIEMAN
WILLIAM DINGLEY."

BIRD PROTECTION PRACTICAL

Dollar-and-Cents Value to Farmers Now Recognized.

The protection of birds has been put on a practical basis. The dollar-and-cents value of the feathered creatures to the American farmer and the country generally is now the basis of the bird protection movement in America. The man who has made it so is T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies, New York City.

For years bird protection was based on sentiment and sympathy. Now the bird protection movement is on a business basis. For instance, the wires recently brought the news that the quail of Minnesota and Kansas were starving by thousands on account of deep snows. Pearson immediately telegraphed $200 to each state to buy grain to feed the quail and he secured permission from the Postmaster General for the rural free delivery carriers to distribute it. On discovering that egret plumes were being smuggled in great number from Florida to New York City, he made a special trip to Washington and got the attorney general of the United States after the plume pirates.

Pearson is telling school children how to build bird-houses and bring song birds back to the home. He is going after the negro in the South and foreigners in the North whose shotguns, he says, have decimated the former number of songsters. He is raising money to pay wardens to protect the birds where they breed and now is starting a movement to make the cemeteries of the country sanctuaries where birds may feel safe from hunters and prowling cats. He is also giving a little attention on the side to Tabby, a bird destroyer.

Pearson, from his office at 1874 Broadway, New York City, is directing the bird protection movement in America. It is estimated he is saving the country many thousands of dollars a year by his practical methods.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty, breath, acid stomach, can instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning, and flushing out the whole of the internal poisons stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

Rheumatism Can be Cured

It is not necessary to go to a high priced watering place and drink nasty tasting water. You can cure yourselves right here at home with a remedy that has stood the test for more than 30 years. It acts directly and speedily upon the kidneys, liver and urinary organs and is a wonderful cleanser and tonic remedy. I can refer to many cases who were cured right here in Rushville. # WHY not give your lad the same training?

"When I was a growing lad, and came upon many words in my reading that I did not understand, my mother, instead of giving me the definition when I applied to her, uniformly sent me to the dictionary to learn it, and in this way I gradually learned many things besides the meaning of the individual word in question—among other things, how to use a dictionary, and the great pleasure and advantage there might be in the use of the dictionary. Afterwards, when I went to the village school, my chief diversion, after lessons were learned and before they were recited, was in turning over the pages of the 'Unabridged' of those days. Now the same method, Unabridged—the NEW INTERNATIONAL—gives me a pleasure of the same sort. So far as my knowledge extends, it is at present the best of the one-volume dictionaries, and quite sufficient for all ordinary uses. Even those who possess the splendid dictionaries in several volumes will find it a great convenience to have this, which is so compact, so full, and so trustworthy as to leave, in most cases, little to be desired."—Albert S. Cook, Ph.D., LL.D., Professor of the English Language and Literature, Yale Univ. April 25, 1911.

SHORT AND TRAGIC

Career of the First Submarine Used in Real War.

SHE WAS BUILT IN MOBILE.

Constructed of Spheroidal Iron and Crude in Design, She Was Operated Against the Federal Ship Housatonic With Disastrous Results.

It is a fact that a submersible boat did actual service in the war between the states and was perhaps the first practical submarine used in actual warfare.

The boat was built in Mobile in 1864 by two men named Hundley and McClintock. It was of boiler iron, sharp at both ends and was about thirty feet long, five or six feet in beam and five or six feet deep. It was propelled by a screw, the shaft of which ran horizontally along the hold, almost from stem to stern and was turned by eight men, who sat four on each side of the shaft.

The only hatchway, placed well forward, was two feet in diameter, and it was closed by an iron cap that worked on a hinge and was airtight. In the forward part of the cap there was a clear glass bulleye, through which the pilot could see. The boat had watertight compartments, by filling or emptying which it could sink or rise. A ballast of iron rails was placed outside the hull, and by means of keys they could be detached so that the boat could rise instantly if necessary.

Besides a rudder, the boat had side paddles, or fins, which could be used to guide it up or down through the water.

The boat could go perhaps four knots an hour. It could remain submerged for half an hour or an hour without serious inconvenience to its crew, and once it remained as long as two hours under water without actual injury to them.

A floating torpedo was fastened to the boat by a line 100 feet long, and the inventor proposed that the boat should dive beneath the keel of the enemy's vessel and haul the torpedo after her. The triggers or sensitive primers of the torpedo would press against the ship's bottom, explode the torpedo and sink the vessel.

The boat was sent to Charleston to operate against the blockading fleet. General Beauregard had the torpedo fastened to the bow. It terminated in front with a sharp lance head, so that when the boat was driven against a ship the lance head would be forced into the ship below the water line and the torpedo fastened against the side. The boat was then to back off and explode the torpedo by a lanyard.

General Beauregard called on the Confederate fleet for volunteers, and Lieutenant Payne, a Virginian, and eight sailors volunteered. On the evening fixed for the expedition the crew had embarked, and the boat was submerged until only the combings of her hatch were above water. Lieutenant Payne was standing in the hatchway when the swell of a passing steamer rolled over the boat, and it sank instantly with her eight men. Lieutenant Payne sprang out of the hatchway as the boat sank, and he alone was saved. In a few days she was raised, and again Payne volunteered and with him eight more men. The embarkation for the second attempt was made at Fort Sumter, and, as before, all being made ready, Payne, standing at his post in the hatchway, gave orders to cast off, when the boat careened and sank instantly. Payne sprang out, two of the men followed him, and the other six went down with the boat and perished.

Again the boat was raised, and her owner, Captain Hundley, took her for an experimental trip to Stone river, where, after going through her usual evolutions, she dived into deep water and disappeared. After a week's search she was found at an angle of forty degrees, her nose driven into the deep, soft mud of the bottom.

Her crew of nine men were standing, sitting or lying about in her hold, asphyxiated. Hundley had died at his post with a candle in one hand, while with the other he had been vainly trying to unclasp the hatch. The angle at which the boat had gone down had jammed the keys so that the men could not cast off the iron ballast that held them down.

Again the ill fated vessel was prepared for action, and volunteers were called for. Lieutenant Dixon of the Twenty-first Alabama volunteered and eight men with him.

The ship Housatonic was selected for attack and on a quiet night the brave crew set out from Charleston. Lieutenant Dixon guided the boat straight to the Housatonic, and the explosion tore open the ship's side, so that she went down with all her crew in two minutes.

The torpedo vessel never returned, and whether she went down with her enemy or drifted out to sea was long unknown. Many years after, in the work of deepening the bar off Charleston harbor, divers in submarine armor visited the wreck of the Housatonic and found the little torpedo vessel lying by her huge victim, and within her the bones of six devoted and daring men as ever went to sea.

In the history of the submarine certainly the Hundley is entitled to honorable mention.—Youth's Companion.

Pence would be surprised if there were neither thine nor mine.—Italian Proverb.

Wayne County Democratic Central Committee Endorses Lontz Candidacy

The Wayne County Democratic Central Committee has adopted the following resolutions:

The candidacy of John M. Lontz for congress is making splendid progress throughout the Sixth District. This is not surprising when the qualities of the man and the existing political conditions are considered.

The first condition that confronts the Democracy is the significant fact that there will be only two candidates for congress in the district in the campaign of this year. The pertinent question is, where will the 9,200 votes go that were cast for the Progressive candidate in 1914?

The present representative, Mr. Gray, was elected in 1914 by a plurality over Mr. Lynch, Republican, by 3,400. If a Democratic representative be elected next November he must not only carry Mr. Gray's vote in 1914, but about 4,000 additional votes. It is no disparagement of Mr. Gray to admit, in view of his greatly reduced plurality of 1914 from that of 1912, that there is grave doubt of his ability to secure this needed additional vote either from the Progressives or from any other source.

Can John M. Lontz secure enough votes outside of the ranks of Democracy to be elected?

We believe he can get these votes and be elected for the following reasons:

FIRST—He is a new man, free from factional or political entanglements and personal enmities.

SECOND—He is an alert and successful business man with unusual executive and administrative ability, and also well versed in the principles of common law on which all statutory law is founded.

THIRD—He understands the political issues of the day and is especially well informed on the vital questions of the tariff and the currency. As a large exporter of lawn mowers he is well qualified to expose the fallacies of the Standpat "scare crow" that a high tariff is necessary to protect American labor from the pauper labor of Europe.

FOURTH—His personal popularity will bring to him if nominated, the aid of 2,000 votes outside his party in Wayne county alone.

JAMES WHITCOMB (10)
1795—1852

"The student of Indiana history will look in vain for a more eminent name than that of James Whitcomb." (Woolen) He was descendant of a famous New England family of Puritans, and spent his boyhood on a farm near Cincinnati, O. Opposed to farm labor, he was frequently reprimanded by his father who feared for the boy's future. Young Whitcomb was recognized as the most omnivorous reader of his community, and often hired his brothers to do his work, promising them in return that he would some day donate them a farm. This promise he literally fulfilled in 1852. Graduating from Transylvania University, he was admitted to the Kentucky bar in 1822. Two years later he moved to Bloomington there gained early recognition in his profession. For six years he was a member of the state senate, and served as chairman of the United States land office. Finding many of the early land grants written in the French and Spanish language, Whitcomb mastered these tongues. He continued to hold his position under VanBuren's administration.

The population of Rushville, by actual county made by A. G. Winter of the Hoffman Directory company, is 6,620. This company is preparing a directory of Rushville and the county has just been completed. The directory will contain the names of all persons over 14 years old, but in gathering the data a complete count was made and the figures showed a population of 6,620. The copy for the directory will go to the printer next week and the book is expected to be ready for delivery between April 15 and 20.

New York, March 4.—A certain physician told of a new way to make the baby stop crying. The plan was successfully employed by a little boy so whose lot it fell to care for his baby brother, a good deal. His mother marked the unwanted silence of the infant when brother was watching him, so she peeked around the door one day and saw how it was done. Brother, it seems, waited until the baby got his mouth open to let out a howl and then leaned over and blew down his throat.

FIFTH—He will carry Wayne county as he did in 1890 for auditor, when the Republicans had a normal majority of about 3,000, and his name on the Democratic ticket will add strength to the State and National tickets and every county ticket in the district.

SIXTH—He will meet the modern need and growing demand for more efficiency in the public service, which has not kept abreast with the progress and the methods of private business.

SEVENTH—He is not a radical nor extremist, but an honest, clear-headed man of self poise and sound judgment.

EIGHTH—As an employer he has proved the friend of labor, recognizing its rights as well as its dignity and importance.

NINTH—As a citizen he has been progressive and public spirited, always ready to aid enterprises for the welfare of the community both by his purse and his personal efforts.

TENTH—He is broad-minded and unselfish and can be depended on to give an earnest and loyal support to the principles of self government.

THE CHINESE WAY

Taking a Street Car Ride in the City of Shanghai.

A PUZZLE FOR A WHITE MAN.

Experience of an American Tourist Who Made a Bluff at Appearing to Know All the Rules—A Patient Conductor and an Interested Cargo.

Writing of his adventures in the Chinese city of Shanghai, Homer Gray, in Leslie's Weekly, tells of the experience he had there in taking a ride on a street car:

The car was full of Chinamen, with not another white soul aboard, all sitting there in their skirts, their faces as expressionless as the heads of drums, but as soon as I came in their faces began to all with interest, one nudging another until the whole car was looking at me.

I felt that something was wrong, but I could not figure out just what. I knew that it shouldn't create that much of a sensation for a white person to get on a car in Shanghai, but still they were looking at me as if I could be signed by a circus. I struggled to look unconcerned, but I knew that my cheeks were backfiring.

The conductor, in his suit of blue jeans, with a satchel over his shoulder, came up and said something to me, while I nodded with earnest carelessness and handed him a twenty cent piece, knowing that he could get enough out of it to satisfy his wants.

"Mun stau chong du?" he asked.

I nodded again and held out my hand for the change, plainly showing that I made the trip on the line twice a day.

"Mun stau chong du t'ing k'ing shou da?" he asked with more feeling, pointing down the street with one hand.

"I didn't catch the drift of his remarks, but I wasn't going to show him that I wasn't an old citizen and fast payer, so I shook my head this time and nestled back in the seat as if it were all settled. But the conductor became more excited than ever, drafted the other hand and gurgled:

"Mun stau chong du t'ing k'ing shou da t'ing da tay as whoo pek quong?"

So I wavered in the other direction and tried to nestle again, but the conductor came back with another round of monosyllabic reinforcements. With that his fellow men in the car came to his help with an arsenal of words, each one thinking that he could make it plain by raising his voice just a bit higher than any one else.

Reaching in his satchel, the conductor offered me a slip of paper speckled with Chinese writing. I took it and started to stuff it nonchalantly into my pocket, but he became more excited than ever and came back with another string of empties, while I put the slip back into his hand as if it made not the slightest bit of difference in the world to me whether I kept it or whether he had it—I would leave the details of the trip to him.

The conductor used his hands some more and then turned and signaled for somebody from the car ahead. Another man in blue jeans with a satchel over his shoulder came and listened for a few blocks while my conductor explained. A Chinaman can never explain anything in a sentence or two; he has to go into details and go through his whole selling talk before he feels that the other has grasped the general drift of thought.

The other man bent over. He was evidently a master of English. "How muchee far you goee, mister? You payee how far you lidee."

Then I understood. When you get on you have to tell the conductor how far you are going, and he charges you for just that distance. But even after my fare was settled the natives on the car kept looking at me and pointing with their chins, as is their custom.

When I went to get off I saw several other white people piling off, but they were all from the front end of the first car. Then I looked at the markings on the car and saw what was the matter—I had been riding in the third class section with the coolies!

All the Shanghai street cars are divided up into classes—first, second and third. The white people all ride first class, the better to go Chinese second, while no one ever ventures third except the coolies.

Nature and Poetry.

Environment aids poetry, but does not create it. Nature is the grand agent in making poetry, and poetry is present wherever nature is. It sparkles on the sea, glows in the rainbow, flashes from the lightning and the star, peals in thunder, roars in the cataract and sings in the winds. Poetry is God's image reflected in nature, as in a mirror, and nature is present wherever man is.—Selected.

His Weak Point.

A man who takes a business view of things when recently asked his opinion of a person of quite a poetic temperament replied:

"Oh, he's one of those men who have soarings after the infinite and divings after the unfathomable, but who never pay cash!"

Something Else.

"Is loving a verb?"

"No; it's just plain nonsense."

Having made this reply to his daughter's question, Mr. Grouch looked a few daggers.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Laughing cheerfulness throws sunlight on all the paths of life.—Richter.

WEARS BEAUTIFUL KIMONA • GIFT OF JAPANESE LOVER •

An Oriental smile always is vividly in the memory of Miss Florence Hawkins, the well known American soprano, who will appear at the Graham Annex auditorium on Friday evening, March 10 at 8:15, with the New York Metropolitan Opera Co. For it almost ended her grand opera career two years ago when an ardent young Japanese wooed her as only a Japanese can.

This young Japanese lover was of a family of high rank, but Miss Hawkins refused to give his name when asked about the romance the other day. She admitted, however, that once she was tempted to give up her career and live away to the flowery kingdom with her Oriental admirer. That was when she was with the Chicago Grand Opera Company.

The young Japanese lover has never ceased to write letters of proposal to Miss Hawkins. His love letters, written in English, are quaint in their expressions.

And Miss Hawkins has retained a bit of the sentiment of this romance of the past. Each night she appears in a beautiful kimona, one of the gifts of this young man. She prizes it more than almost any other of her possessions. She guards it closely. This kimona is worn during the singing of "Madam Butterfly."

"Every time I put on that kimona," she said, "I see that Oriental smile, alluring and—well, I am an American and love my career."

NATIONAL BABY WEEK IS OPENED

Will Hold Spotlight For Six Days

—Backed by Federal Children's Bureau

EXHIBITS ARE PREPARED

Wisconsin Proposed State-Wide Campaign And Texas Has Its Baby Week Slogan

(By United Press.)

Washington, March 4.—Babies of four colors and two nationalities were the center of attraction in 2,029 communities in the United States, Alaska, the Philippines, Canada and the British West Indies today. They will hold the spotlight for the succeeding six days of National Baby Week, inaugurated by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and sponsored by the Federal Children's Bureau.

The babies don't know it, but they are the reason for hundreds of nursing courses, child welfare exhibits, window decorating contests, bazaars, essay contests and general meeting planned during the week in the United States and its possessions, not to mention again Canada and the British West Indies.

Wisconsin proposed a state-wide campaign to place emphasis on adequate nursing, care and instruction for prospective mothers. Texas has its own Baby Week slogan: "Baby health is Texas wealth." Mississippi has a slogan of its own. North Dakota is holding an essay contest in public schools. A Colorado settlement 40 miles from a railroad, a woman's club on a western reclamation project, a Montana coal mining town with a large foreign population, a southern mill village and several farm women's clubs are holding celebrations.

Child welfare exhibits were prepared by women's clubs in Omaha and Lincoln. These will be sent throughout Nebraska. A Maryland town will have a birth registration day; a merchant has promised a tooth brush to every mother who goes to the city hall to find whether her baby's birth is registered. Another city inaugurated a competition for the cleverest widow plan.

Manila will hold its meetings during the week; the babies on two Indiana reservations will be brought from their wigwams, if their parents still affect wigwams, to share in the enlightenment, and to blink boredly during tribal conferences concerning them.

Albany, Baltimore, Boston, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Richmond, San Francisco, Washington and other large cities have programs. New York will have a baby week of its own late this Spring. Many rural communities have announced their intention to participate.

Plans differ, in some respects, in all of the 2,000 cities. But if all the celebrations are the successes the Children's Bureau believes they will be, International Baby ought to rise several points before the market closes next Saturday.

UNTACTFUL ADAMS

The Pathetic Unpopularity of Our Second President.

HE WAS VAIN AND GLAD OF IT

Then, Too, He Had an Obstinate Personality That Endowed Him With a Positive Genius For Putting Himself in the Worst Possible Light.

The choleric John Adams had been president for more than two years, but as long as Washington lived the country refused to look upon any one else as its real head.

The way of the transgressor may be hard indeed, but it is a path of roses compared with the thorny road the successor to a popular idol must tread, and when one reads the frankly expressed opinion of Adams' party friends and party enemies one's sympathies go out to the man upon whom Washington's presidential mantle fell.

"His superfluous highness" was the title the opposition had suggested for him in the days when discussion raged as to what the high officials of the government were to be called. He had great learning, great patriotism and an unquenchable spirit, but overlying and enveloping them all was a positive genius for doing and saying untactful things, for appearing at the worst possible advantage.

A member of his cabinet once said of him that whether he was "sportful, playful, witty, kind, cold, drunk, sober, angry, easy, stiff, jealous, careless, cautious, confident, close or open" he was "almost always so in the wrong place and with the wrong person."

The kindly Franklin characterized him as "always honest, sometimes great, but often mad." One less genial remarked that even in his soberest moments Adams was "the greatest marplot in nature." And John Randolph of Roanoke, whose tongue added the poison of ridicule to the bitterness of gall, called him "that political Malvolio."

Adams thought Washington's talents overrated and on becoming president in his turn was ambitious to make a record brilliant enough to overshadow him. It was certainly no easy task, even without the handicap of Adams' obstinate personality.

He knew that he was vain. "Thank God I am so," he exclaimed. "Vanity is the cordial drop which makes the bitter cup of life go down." But it had its lingering after taste, and justly proud of his record—having, as one of his biographers puts it, "stepped from his little country law office and proved himself a match for the diplomats of Europe"—Adams resented the narrow margin by which he had been elected, calling himself with some bitterness "the president of three votes only."

A vice president can be removed by nothing short of crime or physical incapacity, and Jefferson remained, an ever present and irritating thorn in Adams' side. Adams had found it hard to learn and accept the passive role demanded by the office, and he evidently took some satisfaction in impressing the same uncongenial lessons upon his successor.

Jefferson asserted that he was never consulted upon any question of government after Adams had been two days in power. And he did not make the charge in the humorous mood of a later incumbent, who used to declare that his chief had asked his advice only once and that was about the wording of a Thanksgiving proclamation.

"I believe he always liked me," Adams admitted in a retrospect of his long career, "but he detested Hamilton and my whole administration. Then, he wished to be president of the United States, and I stood in his way. So he did everything that he could to pull me down. But if I should quarrel with him for that I might quarrel with every one I had anything to do with in life. . . . Did you ever hear the lines:

"I love my friend as well as you.
But why should he obstruct my view?
"I forgive my enemies and hope they may find mercy in heaven."—"Our Nation in the Building," by Helen Nicolay, in Century Magazine.

Wesley's Father and Wesley.

One cleric well known to fame who took snuff and loved his pipe was Samuel Wesley, rector of Epworth, Lincolnshire, from 1697 to 1735. He not only smoked his pipe, but sang its praises:

In these raw mornings, when I'm freezing ripe,
What can compare with a tobacco pipe?
Frimed, cocked and touched, 'twould better heat a man
Than the Bath Sagos or Scotch warming pan.

Samuel's greater son, John Wesley, did not share the parental love of a pipe. He spoke of the use of tobacco as "an uncleanly and unwholesome self-indulgence" and described snuffing as a "silly, nasty, dirty custom."—Westminster Gazette.

What the Well Revealed.
One of the first deep wells drilled in the west was put down near Huxley, Nev., by the Central Pacific railway in 1861, in a search for good water. The boring reached a depth of 2,750 feet, but the water obtained was of very unsatisfactory quality. At 1,700 feet the drill encountered a bed of "petrified clams," and the record states that at 1,800 feet well preserved "redwood timber" was found.—Argonaut.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

The good programs which have marked the meetings of the Literary Society of the Orange high school seem to continue for last evening another equally good one was enjoyed when a large per cent. of the members met in the school building. The delightful evening was spent in listening to the following numbers: Piano solo—Miss Florence Paxton. Recitation—Miss Frances Medd. Vocal duet—the Misses Mildred and Helen Houchins. Song—the Misses Nellie Henry, Mildred Houchins and Alice Leonard. Recitation—Miss Grace Coffee. Debate "Resolved That the Present Sentiment Toward Preparedness is Justified." Affirmative—Earl Williams and Monroe Starr; negative—James Clifton and Edwin Johnson, both of Connerville. The judges for the debate decided six to one in favor of the negative.

ORANGE C. W. B. M.

With Mrs. Anna Paxton as hostess and leader, the members of the Orange C. W. B. M. were pleasantly and profitably entertained yesterday afternoon. The living room was brightened with several potted plants for the fifteen or more who were present, two of whom were guests of the society. The leading feature of the afternoon was the program which was excellently prepared and rendered, the following numbers being given:

"Some results of missionary work for children and the way to enlist them for missions"—Mrs. Paxton. Hymn.

Bible reading—Proverbs 22.

Hymn.

Prayer.

Business session.

Review of Bible study—Mrs. Kate Bowen.

Story of "Madonna of the Tear"—Mrs. Emma Ryan.

Third chapter of King's Highway—Mrs. Mary Philips, who showed the effect of Christianity upon India and her children in a clear way.

"Forty Years of Service"—Mrs. Kate McManahan.

Recitation—"Plea for Children"—Mrs. Emma Houchins.

Drill—Questions and Answers—Mrs. Paxton.

Business discussion—by president, Mrs. Mary Philips.

Duet—Mrs. Nellie Davis and Mrs. Martha Moore.

During the pleasant social hour Hymn.

A dainty repast was served to the guests by the hostess.

NEW YORK FASHION NOTES

*****

BY MARGARET MASON.

"Can she make a cherry pie, Billy boy, Billy boy?"

"Now really that's a question very silly."

All the cherries green and red
She is wearing on her head.

In a cap-a-pie effect," says little Billy.

New York, March 4.—A cherry may play it three ways and still be well placed—in a pie, a cocktail or on milady's bonnet. All three are ideal settings for a cherry, but naturally the third is the charm. Just as every cloud has a silver lining, so does every smart spring hat have its first fruits and the cherry is the favorite of the bunch. Dame Fashion is masquerading as Pomona. In consequence, every peach, topped with a few cherries, goes around looking like a mixed fruit salad. It's quite all right if the peach confines the cherries that go to her head to the ones on her hat. If she lets the cherrie in a cocktail go to her head too she is apt to look more like a compote. See Webster's Unabridged.

"Compote:—A combination of stewed fruit." The shape of the new hats—cunning little high crowned effects without brims, or the fetching little Directoire bonnets, lend themselves very prettily to the cherry habit. Following the cherry, the favorite fruits for hats are green and purple grapes, peaches, plums, strawberries, oranges, lemons and apples for daughters of Eve. Some of the big, flat garden hats have an array of fruit around their flat, platelike brims, their vivid colors glowing against a background of glossy green leaves for all the world like Mike the Dago's pushcart display.

But why scratch the rest of the 57 varieties off the sartorial menu? Surely a Cassaba Canapeau, a Banana Bonnet or a Pineapple Picture Hat would be tasty little headpieces for the fruitful fashions.

Just to what lengths can fruits go is best answered by the fact that not only do they grow on spring umbrella handles neck ruffs, belts, sash ends, jacket lapels, blouses frocks, negligees and even lingerie are clusters of them grafted.

The new lawns, organdies and spring silks are printed in fruit designs and even platinum, in enamel and precious stones.

Verily an up to date peach in a cherry hat and a pear of lemon kid gloves according to the current modes could never be a goosberry in any crowd. Rather is she the apple of every male eye, with all of them plum crazy about her.

INTEND TO ERECT MANY EXHIBITS

State Departments Will Take Part at National Conference of Charities and Correction.

WILL ALL BE EDUCATIONAL

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., March 4.—Some fourteen different state departments have signified their intention to erect exhibits in the state house to remain the week of May 10-17, during the sessions of the National Conference of Charities and Correction.

The exhibits will be educational, and will have for their purpose the showing of the progress of the different departments in their work, as well as to inculcate the purpose of the department.

The state board of health, under the direction of Dr. J. N. Hurty and Dr. W. F. King, will have an exhibit on disease prevention. The various displays which they plan to make have for their purpose a showing of the things that cause disease and how to prevent disease at its source.

The state board of health exhibit will come under the general welfare division. Other exhibits will be under the enactment and enforcement of law, state institutions and public schools, public and private charities, and national and miscellaneous. Governor Ralston is the honorary chairman of the exhibits committee, and is taking part in the arrangements. Frank C. Jordan, Indianapolis, is the active chairman.

PREACHER, 41, ADOPTED.

Rev. Henry Natch to Take Name of His Legal Mother.

New York.—The new law permitting the adoption of adults made it possible for Mrs. Sarah Ella Fernald, seventy-one years old and widow of Francis P. Fernald, to fulfill a hope of years when Surrogate Fowler permitted her to adopt the Rev. Henry Natch, forty-one years old. With his wife the clergyman resides at the home of Mrs. Fernald, 34 West Seventy-second street.

Mrs. Fernald was the mother of four children, all of whom are dead, the last dying in 1898. Her husband died in 1907. Her only living relative is an aunt, eighty years old, who has no relatives. She had hoped to be able to perpetuate the family name through an adoption.

She met Mr. Natch when he was a student in the Union Theological seminary in 1902 and shortly after he went west to live with Mr. and Mrs. Fernald. He married Miss Ethel Helena Budington on Dec. 2, 1914, and the two made their home with Mrs. Fernald. Mr. Natch now becomes Henry Natch Fernald, and his wife's name changes accordingly. Mrs. Fernald has a substantial estate, which, she says, she will leave to her adopted son.

FORTY-NINTH STATE URGED.

Upper Peninsula of Michigan Seeks Entrance as Superior.

Calumet, Mich.—Plans for a campaign to carve the forty-ninth state of the Union out of the "upper peninsula" of Michigan, under the name "Superior," were discussed here by Roger M. Andrews, proprietor of the Menominee Herald-Leader, at the annual banquet of the Calumet Business Men's association.

He asserted that the assessed valuation of the district exceeds that of any one of seventeen states which he named and laid stress upon the fact that it is isolated from the rest of the state.

Let Us

- Get a dollar's worth of work for every dollar spent
- Have a reduction in public expenditures
- Have efficiency and integrity in public service; require a strict adherence to both
- Have an equitable taxing system based on earning power of property
- Have a system of municipal government where the people shall have a voice in local self-government and its character
- Remove the contract system wholly from the penal institutions
- Have a road system that will not waste millions of the farmers' money—one under which we may obtain federal aid and co-operation
- Have an insurance department divorced from politics with a capable head, and a ditching law by which money may not be squandered without benefit to the land owner.

BABY WEEK CELEBRATION

(By United Press.)

Evansville, Ind., March 4.—All of Evansville's clubs and associations joined hands today for the local celebration of Baby Week, which is a national affair. Out-of-town lecturers will be heard and baby will come into its own. The slogan adopted is, "This is a business proposition, not charity."

Rich as Croesus.

The boys were bragging about their parents. "I bet my father is richer than your father," said one. "He has to pay lots and lots of money for taxes every year."

"That's nothing," retorted the other. "My father is so rich that he can afford to hire a lawyer to fix things so he don't have to pay any taxes."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Suspicious Document.

"All this here business education among women is tough on us cooks."

"How so?"

"The last lady I worked for gimme a reference written in shorthand. What did she say about me, I wonder?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.
